

Canal future up to Senate

PANAMA'S TORRIJOS VOTES ... in treaty plebiscite

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Panamanians approved the new Panama canal treaties by a 240-1 margin in voting Sunday, leaving the future of the strategic waterway in the hands of the U.S. Senate.

With 80 per cent of the votes counted this morning, the totals were 374,722 in favor, 188,035 against, with 8,209 invalid ballots.

Voting officials said between 90 and 95 percent of 800,000 eligible voters in this nation of 1.7 million persons cast ballots for or against the treaties, which turn control of the strategic waterway and its adjacent zone over to Panama by the year 2000.

Indians of the San Blas Island voted against the treaties and, for good measure, one group took down the Panamanian flag and ran up the Stars and Stripes.

A spokesman for the Indians said they feared approval of the treaties would end the tourist trade, which depends on U.S. visitors.

The San Blas vote against the treaties was 2,533 to 2,433. San Blas was the only area which voted against the treaty.

Panama's chief treaty negotiator, Romulo Escobar Bethancourt, earlier had estimated that 85 per cent of the voters would favor the treaties. U.S. officials in Panama had predicted a 90 per cent "yes" vote.

As he watched the votes being tallied at the Legislative Palace, Carlos Lopez Guevara, another treaty negotiator, said: "A massive vote in favor wasn't expected because we're paying a price for the treaty."

"We're sending a message to the U.S. Senate that we're not entirely satisfied with the treaties."

With Panama's approval of the pacts, the next step is up to the U.S. Senate which must ratify the treaties before they take effect.

"I have never had any doubt that the Senate would ratify the treaties," Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian head of state, said just before the polls closed.

One treaty covers the turning over of the 51-mile canal to Panama by 2000. The second covers neutrality of the canal after the year 2000, including the U.S. right to intervene militarily.

Torrijos said he never doubted a victory because "the people wanted a peaceful solution" to end American control of the waterway that runs through Panama to link the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans.

"Thousands of mothers voted today so their sons would not have to die in a bloody battle they did not provoke," Torrijos told a nationwide radio audience.

"I was aware that these people were waiting for a reply with votes and not with boots, rifles or cannons," he said.

Since a favorable vote had been anticipated, there were no public celebrations in downtown Panama City.

Decision delayed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Land Board delayed today a decision whether to transfer the old Tuberculosis Hospital at Gooding to the Board of Corrections for a women's penitentiary.

Board members agreed to hold a public hearing at Gooding prior to Nov. 3 to receive input from the community.

The Nov. 3 date is the deadline by which the board must reach a decision if the Board of Corrections can obtain a $115,000 federal grant for construction at the facility.

Gov. John V. Evans said it was "imperative" the state take advantage of the $115,000 if the facilities were transferred to the corrections department. He said if the state didn't take advantage of these funds, it will place the state in an "obvious financial crunch."

George Bennett, Boise, a member of the Board of Correction, said the facility was necessary to meet a legislative mandate and give "us some breathing room."

The 1977 Idaho Legislature directed the correction board to come up with a plan to jail women inmates in Idaho and to report back to the 1979 legislative session.

Bennett said it was the board's firm conviction that the Gooding facility was needed and "we would like it as soon as possible." He said not only would it meet the legislative mandate, but it would solve "growing room" problems of the State Penal system.

"There is an immediate and dire need for this facility," Bennett said.

He said the correction board should have priority over a private group, referring to the private alcohol treatment facility presently housed at the state facility in Gooding.

"I see no reason we can't get along together if they moved to the old wing," Bennett said.

But Clay Robertson said utilization of the old wing depended on a number of things.

"We can't renovate it and we don't plan to do that," he said in reiterating that his organization desired to stay at the hospital until next summer so it could have time to find new facilities.

He said the center was a savings to the taxpayers of Idaho.

"If we have to go out of business, the state will have to establish a facility at a greater cost," Robertson said.

State Public Instruction Supt. Roy Truby suggested the facility be transferred to the Board of Corrections and that the center be allowed to remain until Aug. 1.

TWIN FALLS COUNTY SHERIFF PAUL CORDER EXAMINES ITEMS HELD ... accumulated as evidence in assorted cases investigated

Merchandise gathers dust in police evidence rooms

By BOB ZUCKERMAN Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Piles of department store items like clothing, appliances and televisions are gathering dust in the Magic Valley, most of the stuff not for sale.

In fact, a lot of it is doomed never to see the light of day and sits forlornly on shelves in dark rooms.

The rooms are in almost every county seat town around the valley. You can find them tucked around the back with odds and ends you've probably needed at one time or another, but the odds are you can't go into the room to look at the stuff.

These "evidence rooms" in local police stations hold thousands of dollars worth of confiscated jewelry, televisions, stereos and the like.

In addition, area police stations lock away piles of money, arsenals of guns and ammunition, and enough marijuana to make any pot smoker glazed.

The confiscated property is stashed away in anything from a large room without windows and wall-to-wall shelves as in the Twin Falls Police Station to just some locked filing cabinets as in the Gooding Police station.

A quick tour of the Twin Falls police evidence room, revealed about 30 rifles, and shotguns, more than 100 handguns (including a few of the sawed-off variety), more than $300 in cash, seven car tape decks, four BB guns, four televisions, three cameras, two guitars and one crossbow.

In addition, the room held assorted handtools, knives, and a two-foot by two-foot by 11½-foot box "full of illegal drugs," waiting to be sent to the Bureau of Narcotics to be destroyed.

"It's a headache to keep track of all the stuff," says Police Detective Capt. Tim Qualls. But he and others in charge of evidence rooms across the Magic Valley are doing it, because somebody has to.

Qualls says most of the merchandise valued all together at from $5,000 to $6,000 is picked up with suspected criminals after burglaries and other rip-offs. It is stored in the police station until needed at a trial court as proof and then after making its appearance in courtrooms as evidence, it is returned to its original owner.

Of course, not all of the stuff is stolen merchandise picked up with the burglars. Some of it is just lost merchandise that has been given to the police because no one knows who the owners are.

Winterizing homes OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Putting aside the bitter exchanges that marked its sessions last week, a House-Senate conference committee today quickly approved a program to help low income families winterize their homes.

Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., chairman of the panel that is seeking to compromise different versions of the energy bill, opened the session with a call for his colleagues to abandon their feuding and personal exchanges.

The conferees then agreed on the creation of a new grant program to help low income homeowners pay for weather stripping their houses and taking other actions to protect them against cold.

Senate members of the committee accepted the House versions of the weatherization plan, even though they had wanted to consolidate the program approved by the House with two similar programs already in existence.

The plan that was finally adopted contained a requirement that all three programs be reviewed after a year, with the possibility one or more might be eliminated.

A weekend of rest apparently changed the mood of the conferees, but the toll of bargaining was clear last week when even talk on the conservation part of the bill — supported by most of the lawmakers — ignited exchanges.

Next year it's Nov. 11

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Veterans Day is observed today for the last time in October before the nation returns to the traditional Nov. 11 date marking the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month when the guns fell silent on the battle fields of World War I.

Congress, spurred by demands for holiday weekends, passed a "Monday Holiday Law" in 1968 to change the observance of three national holidays from dates of the year to fixed Mondays.

Veterans, organizations, led by the American Legion, challenged the change in the date for Veterans Day and began working with state legislatures to have the date changed back to Nov. 11.

Legislation returning the date to Nov. 11 was approved by Congress last year and signed by President Gerald Ford. Legislatures in most of the states already have approved similar laws.

Max Cleland, head of the Veterans Administration and a Vietnam veteran who lost both legs and an arm, urged Americans "to observe Veterans Day in a manner that will let our nation's veterans know that their sacrifices are and always will be recognized and appreciated."

The observance of Columbus Day and George Washington's birthday will remain unchanged.

Israel built secret nuclear arsenal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Israel put together a secret nuclear arsenal a decade ago by raiding uranium from Europe and the United States, according to a forthcoming story in Rolling Stone magazine, released today.

The magazine said a specially created commando unit orchestrated four uranium hijackings in Europe — two with the cooperation of the French and West German governments — and smuggled several hundred pounds of bomb-grade uranium from a nuclear processing facility in Pennsylvania.

Rolling Stone said the stolen material was used to give Israel a "last-resort military alternative" in its conflict with the Arabs.

Writers Howard Kohn and Barbara Newman said their two principal sources were a highly placed Pentagon consultant and a former official of the National Security Agency.

The magazine claimed the CIA brought the Pennsylvania operation to the attention of President Lyndon Johnson in 1968, but Johnson ordered the then CIA director, Richard Helms, to keep the matter secret.

Rolling Stone said Israel's intelligence service, Mossad, set up a special commando unit in 1967 or 1968 to raid the Western nuclear powers. In France, in early 1968, the Israelis overpowered the driver of a 25-ton truck full of uranium by firing teargas canisters into the cab.

The commandos then smuggled the uranium to clandestine military bases in the Negev desert, the story said.

Another nuclear shipment was hijacked in England soon afterwards, Rolling Stone said.

Rolling Stone said the same Israeli agents subsequently carried out two more uranium hijackings with the cooperation of the French and West German governments in exchange for cash and advanced nuclear technology. These hijackings were staged to disguise the transactions, it said.

According to the magazine, the Israelis paid West Germany $37 million and handed over scientific secrets for 200 tons of uranium that the Israelis pirated from the cargo ship Scherburg A in the Mediterranean in November, 1968.

McClure blasts water studies

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure told the Idaho Watersheds Association today that the Carter administration has proven to be an enemy to Idaho's people, rights and traditional way of life.

McClure said the Carter Administration record on water is "disastrous and a direct threat to the very lifeblood of Idaho."

"Carter's national water policy study is nothing less than an eastern establishment conspiracy to gain federal control of our western water under the guise of study," McClure said.

"The very existence of such a study, which proposes the sale of water to the highest bidder and the regional interbasin transfer of water, is a direct and very serious threat to Idaho."

He called on Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus, as chairman of the National Water Resource Board, to halt the study immediately before "more of the eastern establishment gets the idea that our water is theirs for the taking."

The administration is refusing to help ease the problem of court-forced enforcement of 160-acre limitations on farmers using federal reclamation water, McClure said.

"This administration should be actively supporting a one-year moratorium on enforcement of the limitation but instead they are opposing the measure," he said. "Some Idaho family farming operations may be faced with quick extinction unless we can hold this off until Congress has time to act."

McClure urged the water users to pressure all of the state's congressional delegation to support the moratorium as well. He said the western congressional delegation, en masse, must strongly support it so that the possible break up of farms will be headed off.

He also called again for immediate hearings in Idaho on the 160-acre limitation by the Congress and the administration. He said he was strongly disappointed that Andrus just last Friday announced he still is refusing to hold hearings in Idaho. He also renewed his call for Senate committee hearings in the Gem State in December.

"The West has little influence with the White House," McClure said. "The Carter administration has sought to kill many western water projects. It is attempting to break up many family farming operations and it is promoting a national water policy which would usurp our traditional rights."

Chicago hotel fire takes 7 lives

CHICAGO (UPI) — A cigarette apparently touched off a fire that killed seven persons and injured 12 others Sunday in a hotel which rented rooms by the hour, investigators said.

The blaze in the Hotel Toledo on Chicago's southwest side apparently began when a cigarette set fire to a mattress in a first-floor room, bomb and arson investigators said. Six of the dead were trapped in a four-room addition on the first floor. The blaze spread rapidly through the two-story, 19-room brick hotel.

There was no evidence of arson, investigators said.

Damage to the hotel was estimated at $35,000. The hotel charged $5.75 for a five-hour stay and $7 for 12 hours.

The Hotel Toledo, formerly called the Paper Doll, was known as a "trouble spot" because of prostitutes and transients who frequented it.

said Patrolman James T. Durkin.

Lois Matthews, the room clerk, said the fire began in Room 101, where a couple stayed three hours and was checked out moments before the blaze was discovered.

"People were screaming and jumping out the windows," Miss Matthews said. "You couldn't see anything — the smoke was so bad inside."

A neighbor said, "I heard people screaming 'help, help' from inside the building. Another neighbor was awakened by cries of 'fire.'"

About 30 residents had to be evacuated from the L-shaped building. Most climbed down ladders from the second floor because the fire blocked first floor exits, officials said. Some jumped to the ground.

hour to bring the early-morning blaze under control.

Two of the victims, pronounced dead on arrival at Central Community Hospital, were identified as Larry Johnson, 35, and Cheryl McKinnie, 25, who was six months pregnant, a spokesman for the Cook County Medical Examiner's office said.

It took until late Sunday to positively identify the others. They were A. J. Bales, 25; Sally Watson, 31; Sandra Fisher, 20; Thayne Taylor, 41; and Frank Collier, 44, all residents of Chicago's South Side.

Three of the injured were firemen, but none was hurt seriously. Most of the injured were treated for cuts and smoke inhalation, officials said.

"It took firemen about one

This is the case with the roughly 30 bicycles stored in the police station garage, most of them found by police, according to Police Chief Frank Barnett.

Every six months or whenever the police officials have so many cars and other confiscated material that they can't store them all, they hold an auction. Under city ordinance, if someone does not claim a lost item at the station within 30 days, the police have the authority to auction it off.

The auctions don't occur more than twice a year. During the last auction in April, the police department sold three cars and a host of bicycles, making about $1,100.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office is in much the same business. Last spring in a county auction, three cars collected by sheriff's deputies were sold for roughly $500.

In the sheriff's evidence room are some 20 rifles, 20 handguns, a saddle and collection of homemade knives, not to mention marijuana worth roughly $300 on the street.

The sheriff's office has collected so many hash-and-marijuana pipes over the years that deputy Buddy Dewese has put together a display of about 50 of them.

"I've got enough to make three displays just alike," Dewese says.

Other law enforcement officials don't collect as many goods. The Gooding police department only has about nine bicycles.

Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall said his department has roughly six guns locked away. He said recently deputies poured roughly two cases of beer down the drain. The beer had been confiscated and held as evidence for six months.

Incidents claim 12

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Twelve persons, including a white Dutch Reformed church minister and his wife, died in war-related incidents in Rhodesia during the weekend, the military command announced today.

A communiqué said the Rev. Andries Louw Brand, 49, and his wife Tabina Metje Brand, 42, were killed "in a terrorist ambush" Sunday night as they traveled between the midlands towns of Gwesu and Que Que.

Brand, African Dutch

Reformed church minister for Que Que, was returning "from having administered communion in the Gokwe area," the communiqué said.

Brand was born in Rhodesia. His wife was from the Netherlands. The couple had six children.

The communiqué said Rhodesian troops over the weekend killed six black nationalist guerrillas and one black civilian "living with and actively assisting a terrorist gang."

Isle-singed by volcano

SAINT DENIS DE LA REUNION, Reunion Island (UPI) — The La Fournaise volcano erupted today in the center of this French island in the Indian Ocean, spouting incandescent rocks and lava, the authorities said.

A stream of lava began moving down the slopes of the volcano from a 600-foot long crack near the summit. But the lava, moving at the speed of 15 miles per day was heading toward an uninhabited national reserve area, the authorities said.

An eruption of the volcano last April in a different spot partly destroyed the Piton Sainte Rose village.

Soviet airline officials demand hijackers' return

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet airline officials today demanded the return from the United States of a father and son who hijacked an Aeroflot plane in 1970, allegedly killing a stewardess and injuring three others.

The hijackers, Franas Slasio, 46, and his son Agirdas, served several years of a sentence in Turkey and then made their way to the United States, where they entered illegally after a brief period on South America.

Soviet authorities claim they killed stewardess Nadezhda Kurchenko, 21, and crippled the pilot of the plane, firing some 20 shots into the cockpit as the pilot put the craft into a steep dive in an attempt to throw them off balance.

The Lithuanian hijackers are currently facing immigration proceedings in the United States, but a number of American-Lithuanian organizations have taken up their cause. They claim the Soviet authorities were responsible for the deaths and injuries.

The news conference was held today to protest the fact that immigration proceedings are under way to send the two hijackers to Venezuela, their last residence before illegally entering the United States.

The airlines authorities say, President Carter should turn the father and son over to the Soviet Union, where they face criminal charges and a possible death sentence if convicted under an anti-hijacking law passed in 1972.

At the news conference, stewardess Yelena Mukhina read a statement for Carter signed by 34 other stewardesses demanding the father and son be returned to face trial.

"Can it be this crime won't be punished?" she asked. "The girl who was killed was just beginning her life. She was the same age as one of your sons. We are asking you to return those who should answer for their crimes."

It is the second such message sent to Carter, and the co-pilot of the hijacked plane and its mechanic made it clear they were not satisfied with an earlier response, which outlined the stages of immigration proceedings against the hijackers.

"The captain of the plane had to give up his job and will be crippled for life," said mechanic Orinas Babayan.

"It is no honor that the United States hides these bandits. It is necessary to return them so they can answer for their crime."

Medic disagrees with ruling

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The doctor who performed Elvis Presley's autopsy does not agree with the Shelby County medical examiner's conclusion that heart disease killed the late rock star, it was reported Sunday.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal said that Dr. E. Eric Muirhead, the chief pathologist at Baptist Hospital, did not consider it possible for a heart ailment to have been the cause of the entertainer's death at 42.

Dr. Jerry Francis, the county medical examiner, had told reporters during the weekend that Presley died of hypertensive heart disease with coronary artery heart disease contributing to his death. He reiterated that none of the 10 drugs found in laboratory tests were in any way a cause of death.

Francis said Presley's heart condition Aug. 16 would have been fatal even if he had not taken any drugs.

Muirhead, described by the newspaper as an internationally recognized authority on hypertension, conducted the three-hour autopsy on Presley. The Commercial Appeal said the hospital's autopsy report lists Presley's death as a drug-related one commonly known as "polypharmacy."

Of particular note is the combination of codeine, Placidyl and barbiturates, the confidential autopsy report said.

Muirhead and others who have worked on the final autopsy report for two months, are not commenting on reports that Presley's death may have been caused by a combination of the prescribed drugs

Common law wife shares

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — A woman who lived with a man for 16 years must be considered his common-law wife and entitled to a share of his will, the New Hampshire Supreme Court said today.

The court upheld a Merrimack County Probate Court ruling which gave Phoebe Dunn a share of the will of Clark L. Gray, with whom she lived from 1957 until his death in 1973. State laws say persons living together for three years can be considered legally married.

Terrorists continue bombing campaign

Prerequisite

SAUDI ARABIA'S foreign minister, Saud Al-Faisal, said in a television interview in Washington Sunday that if Israelis want peace in the Middle East they will have to accept the Palestinians and the Palestine Liberation Organization across the bargaining table at the proposed Geneva conference.

ROME (UPI) — Leftist terrorists wounded a Milan councilman, planted a pipebomb that maimed a policeman and firebombed West German property throughout Italy and France Sunday in their campaign to avenge the deaths of three West German comrades.

Carlo Arienti, 31, a Milan councilman who shot eight times outside his home by two men and a woman as he left for church, doctors said Arienti — hit seven times in the legs and once in the chest — was in satisfactory condition despite extensive internal damage.

A pipe bomb found in front of a Mercedes-Benz automobile dealership in the northern town of Brescia blew off the hand of a policeman trying to disarm it, police said.

Since Andreas Baader, cofounder of the Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang, and two cohorts were reported to have committed suicide in their prison cells last Tuesday, radical leftists throughout Europe have retaliated by destroying West German property and attacking those they view as sympathizers.

An anonymous telephone caller claiming to represent the Red Brigades, a terrorist group told the Italian news agency ANSA the attack on Arienti was linked to the Baader-Meinhof deaths.

"I am from the Red Brigades," ANSA quoted the caller as saying. "This morning one of our commando teams wounded Carlo Arienti, a man of the Christian Democrats in the service of the chiefs."

"Hugor to you West German comrades killed by German imperialism. Remember that in the end nothing will remain unpunished," the caller said.

Police also investigated two telephone threats against West German embassy personnel by anonymous callers claiming to represent the Red Brigades and another extremist group.

"The German ambassador in Italy has been condemned. The sentence will be carried out by firing squad," one of the callers reportedly said.

A Mercedes-Benz dealership in Naples was damaged by firebombs and police there arrested 10 persons trying to set off firebombs.

Paris, about 150 leftists occupied the offices of the leftist Paris daily Liberation Sunday demanding publication of a special issue favorable to the Baader-Meinhof group, police said. There were no reports of violence.

Other leftists threw firebombs at a branch of the Franco-German Bank in Paris and at a Mercedes automobile showroom, police said.

At Le Havre on the northern French Atlantic coast, firebombs caused little damage to a BMW automobile showroom, police said.

Retaliation fear shaking Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (UPI) — Somalia is "scared to death" of possible retaliation for its cooperation with West Germany in ending a terrorist hijacking on its soil, foreign observers say.

So far, the identities of the four guerrillas who took over the Lufthansa jetliner over Europe and forced it to fly eventually to Mogadishu are not known. West German commandos killed three of them in a raid last Tuesday and rescued all 86 hostages.

The Somalis have refused requests from the United States and other Western countries for photographs and fingerprints that might help clear up the mystery. No one knows for sure why, but one foreign resident suggested a reason.

"There is no question they are scared to death," he said. Other observers said the possibility of some kind of terrorist retaliation has become an ever-present fear in Mogadishu and security has been noticeably tightened.

Perhaps as a consequence, the incident has been officially closed. Officials profess ignorance when asked about any of the potentially explosive qualities of the hijacking.

The one hijacker who survived the German assault is being held under close guard by the Somali secret service in the Italian-run hospital in Mogadishu. Although not seriously wounded, she reportedly went into shock after the raid and pleaded with her doctors, "Why don't you kill me, too?"

Some reports from West Germany described the hijackers as West German and Arab. Diplomats in Mogadishu seem convinced they are all of Middle East origin.

Black groups still banned

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa says 18 black consciousness groups will remain banned permanently despite the recall of the U.S. ambassador and growing pressure for U.N. action against the white regime.

Police Minister Jimmy Kruger said Sunday in a television and radio interview the anti-apartheid organizations would never be allowed to function again, but that two black newspapers, The World and Weekend World, might eventually be allowed to resume publication.

The United States recalled Ambassador William Bowdler to discuss South Africa's crackdown on black dissent last week in which 70 black leaders were detained, three newspapers shut down and 18 groups disbanded.

Prime Minister John Vorster, in an American television interview Sunday, ruled out any compromise on South Africa's racial supremacist policies, which are opposed by American leaders.

"Obviously we must survive on our own and we are prepared to stand alone if we must," he said. "It appears to us at the moment, the Soviets want to kill us off by force, (and) the United States wants to strangle us with finesse."

At the United Nations, the Security Council was beginning a three-day debate today on demands by black nations for an economic and arms embargo on South Africa in retaliation for the crackdown.

Kruger said the anti-apartheid groups would remain banned permanently but he denied the government was attempting to quash opponents of the government's racial policies.

"People who don't like apartheid are quite entitled to say so, but opponents of the state who contemplate its violent overthrow will certainly be stopped and that's why the action was taken," Kruger said.

He said the "World" and "Weekend World" could be deproclaimed if unrest in South Africa quiets down completely.

Kruger said he was not planning to charge the persons who had been detained under the Internal Security Acts, including World editor Percy Qoboza. Donald Woods of the Daily Dispatch, of East London was silenced for five years by a banning order.

American remarks stir Soviet ire

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union says "sharply discordant" remarks on human rights by American diplomats at the Belgrade conference jeopardize the "relaxation of tensions."

In a commentary Sunday, the Communist daily Pravda said the atmosphere at the conference has been generally "businesslike" but that Arthur Goldberg, head of the U.S. delegation, had delivered "sermons" on "how other people should manage their domestic affairs."

"Many pronouncements by the U.S. diplomats sound sharply discordant with the weighted, businesslike speeches made by a majority of the participants in the meetings," Pravda said.

It said Goldberg "repeatedly and quite ardently assured that he wished to avoid confrontation."

Strait hit by tremors

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI) — Four minor earth tremors shook the cities of Messina and Reggio Calabria on opposite sides of the Strait of Messina early today, officials reported.

The first jolt at 4:57 a.m. (11:57 p.m. EDT Sunday) and measuring 4 on the 12-point Mercalli scale was followed by three others of lesser intensity.

Panicky residents rushed into the streets but there were no reports of casualties and only slight damage to some old buildings.

The Messina University seismograph station placed the epicenter in the strait at a point 17 miles to the south-southeast.

These Communications, publications and packages must be sorted, distributed, delivered ... speeding communications and parcels to all corners of the globe. It takes organization, teamwork is a necessity. Concentration and co-operation are absolute requisites. The faithful employees so engaged are energetic, sincere, alert and well-versed in the various phases of the department's function. It is their aim to do a job and do it well, serving the needs of the public in every possible way. All are part of our day. We salute our postal employees and their hard-earned efforts!

25 YEARS IN BUSINESS

Federal arts subsidy questioned

JAMES L. KILPATRICK
Let me return, if I may, to the business of the crepe paper, the sky divers, the strolling straight and the six thousand dollars. Michael Straight has some further reflections, and his further reflections prompt my further reflections. To refresh your memory: A year or so ago, a Pittsburgh artist, Le Ann Wilchusky, obtained a grant of $6,025 from the National Endowment for the Arts for the production of a 20-minute film. Part of the grant financed a week in the Caribbean for the artist and her husband, where he photographed her at work. Most of the balance paid for a short flight in a small plane over El Paso in August of 1976. It was during this flight that four rolls of crepe paper were unrolled while a camera recorded the interesting scene.

The senator hit the ceiling, all splattered out, and some time elapsed before he returned to the floor. Then he denounced the award as "outrageous," and awarded the National Endowment for the Arts his Golden Fleece of the Month.

Now Michael Straight, acting chairman of the Endowment, has come forth with a useful suggestion: The Endowment itself, he says, should stop making direct grants to individual artists, composers, poets and the like. Such grants lay the endowment open to attack, and cause more trouble than they are worth.

Mr. Straight asks: How is artistic excellence to be determined? It may be possible to reach a consensus in some areas. If 30 young pianists compete in a blind competition, playing the identical work, a competent jury usually will arrive at agreement on their talent. The same thing is true, Mr. Straight believes, of works of literature. But what of the visual arts? Here agreement comes hard.

"There are Anti-Object Artists, and Earth-work Artists, Conceptual Artists and Performance Artists; Minimalists and Minimal-Systematists; Traditionalists committed to form, and Iconoclasts, whose sworn purpose is to annihilate all form in the visual arts. Given this range, standards become meaningless; no consensus can be assured."

Mr. Straight's idea is to increase the public funds available for individual artists, but to change the grant procedures. He would halt direct "handouts," which perpetuate the alienation between the artist and the taxpayer. Instead, he would have the government match purchase awards by art museums, publishers and local symphonies. By dispersing the "patronage power," he feels, a major obstacle to the continued growth of public funding for the arts could be removed.

The gentleman's proposal makes sense; it ought to be promptly approved by Congress. If some state or private museum had been willing to put up $3,000 toward Ms. Wilchusky's crepe paper epic, at least the National Endowment could have ducked half its responsibility. But Mr. Straight's temporizing suggestion begs the fundamental issue.

This is the fundamental issue: What is the federal government doing in the arts business in the first place? You can search the Constitution from Article One through Article Seven and find not one shred of authority for Congress to spend the people's money in this fashion. The power simply is not there. Only by stretching the general welfare clause to its utmost limit can even a tenuous rationalization be found for these expenditures.

Even if the Constitution permitted such outlays, federal subsidies would remain a poor idea. At any given moment, thousands of artists, sculptors, poets, novelists, playwrights and composers are at work. If public funds are given to Poet A, the funds must be denied Poet B. If the government smiles upon Sculptor C, whose art is to smelt in cans, such financial aid must be denied Sculptor D, who carves in classic themes. Erica Jong got $5,000 of the people's money in order to write a dirty book. "Fear of Flying." Is this what we have to pay taxes for?

No, sir. Artists, writers and composers should make it on their own, or not at all. Once the government stamps its imprimatur on their works, the government makes the rate unfair. Congress is forbidden to make any law respecting an establishment of religion; by the same token, it ought to be prohibited from funding an establishment of art.

Where have all the spies gone?

MOSCOW — Whatever happened to the Soviet "James Bonds," the movie heroes who risk their lives for the KGB (Soviet secret police)? That's the lament of the film critic of Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party daily. He is dismayed by the gradual disappearance of good Soviet spy films — "the invisible struggle of the selfless agent."

The first wave of spy adventures, he said, began in the 1950s with stories of daring deeds, by the mid-1960s, films about secret agents were marked by a search for more documentary exactness and authenticity concerning circumstances and conditions of an agent's life. And today, the critic says, Soviet spy films are "just zero," using old ideas and techniques.

There is, according to the paper, a rich treasure of biographies of Soviet agents such as "the glorious Rudolph Abel" which can still be drawn on to "inspire and excite the fantasy of the Soviet audiences."

Abel, the so-called master spy, was serving a 30-year jail term in the United States when, in 1962, he was traded for Francis Gary Powers, the U-2 pilot who had been shot down over the Soviet Union two years earlier.

Foreigners frustrate football fan

WASHINGTON — If there is anything that really bugs me it is watching a pro football game with a foreigner. I had the experience last week. My friend was visiting from London with his wife, and they both seemed very excited about seeing their first American football game on television.

It happened to be the Redskins-Dallas game, and for a Redskins fan I knew it wasn't going to be much fun. The game started out all right, but before long it got rather bloody. This is when they both started asking questions.

"Is the object of the game to injure as many players on the other team as possible?" the husband asked.

"No, that is not the object of the game," I said.

The wife said, "Do you get more points for breaking a man's leg or his neck?"

"You don't get points for breaking either his leg or his neck. You get penalized for it."

"Oh," said the husband. "What is the penalty?"

"Your team is penalized 15 yards."

"Do you mean to say that if you break an opponent's leg, you only get 15 yards against you?"

"What do you think he should get?" I said, trying to hold my temper.

"In England I believe it's three years in prison," the wife replied.

"It's a game," I said. "The men who play expect to have their legs broken. That's what makes it so exciting."

"Of course," said the husband. "One must expect injuries."

A few minutes later the referee walked off 10 yards against the Redskins.

"I didn't see anyone get hurt," the wife said. "Why is there a penalty?"

"Because one of our men was holding one of their men."

"What is the penalty for that?"

"Ten yards."

"Do you mean to say, if you hold a man the team loses 10 yards, but if you break his leg, you are penalized only 15 yards?" the wife asked.

I was beginning to lose my patience. "That is correct. In football, holding is almost as serious as breaking someone's leg."

"Of course," the husband said. "It does make sense when you explain it."

In the second quarter the wife turned to me. "Did you notice one of their chaps hit one of your chaps with his fist?"

"That's not permitted," I said.

"Then why doesn't someone do something about it?"

"No one saw it," I replied.

"Everyone on television must have seen it," she said.

"The referee didn't see it. If he had, he would have called a personal foul."

"Which means the player would be thrown out of the game?" the husband asked.

"Of course not. You don't get thrown out of the game for slugging another player. If that happened you wouldn't be able to have a pro football game. The thrill of football for a player is to hit an opponent and not get caught doing it."

One of the Redskins was stretched out on field, groaning in agony.

"How long is he permitted to lie on the field," the husband asked, "without being penalized?"

"As long as he wants to. When a man is seriously injured, even permit a doctor to treat him."

"How civilized," the wife said.

I couldn't keep my temper in any longer. "What do you think we are — barbarians?"

"Quite," the husband said.

President Carter has been proving his lack of Washington knowledge

©1977 N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter, who got elected last year by boasting that he didn't know anything about Washington, has spent most of this year proving it. In eight months on the job, he has managed to irritate his black supporters, endanger his Southern base, offend some of the most powerful people in Congress, outrage many of his potential supporters in the Senate and alienate such formidable blocs as the pro-Israel, oil-and-gas and military-industrial lobbies.

Some may love him for the enemies he has made — this kind of politics worked for Richard Nixon for a while — but if so they are being quiet about it. The most interesting sounds coming out of Washington this fall are the sighs of disillusion from those who loved him last November.

It is easy to make the case sound more desperate than it is, and this is what is being done. It was only to be expected by overreaching ourselves on the virtues of the presidents we elect, and, when they turn out to be frail and mortal we oversell ourselves on their shortcomings.

In the Carter campaign people who should have known better oversold themselves on the virtues of innocence. Their man's lack of experience in the Byzantine maze of Washington should have alerted them to the possibility that, if elected, he would inevitably have to suffer some exceedingly painful on-the-job training. Now that he is getting it, they lament the fact that he lacks the cunning of a Lyndon Johnson who lived and breathed Washington for 30 years before facing off against Congress from the White House.

A troublesome problem of American government is that the skills required to get elected president nowadays are of very little use once you have won the job.

Cutting an admirable figure on television, conveying a sense of decency, maturity, intelligence and authority — these are indispensable for getting elected but of small use in persuading the Congress to overturn the tax structure, stopping one's countrymen from burning all the oil in the cosmos or showing the Israelis the wisdom of abandoning passionately held views of their own self-interest.

Achieving such ambitious goals requires talents with no sane campaign architect would let his presidential candidate confess. Among these are talents for horse-trading, bullying and subtle bribery, a talent for detecting the point at which principle can be compromised short of disgrace, a talent for setting priorities and knowing which goals will require battling too frightful to be fought without risk of spending all one's political capital. Above all, one must have an instinctual grasp of the basic rule of Washington survival: Italian your enemies.

The Carter campaign was based on the argument that he was singularly innocent of these very talents that would be needed to carry out the ambitious programs he was promising to enact, and that for this reason he would make the best of all possible presidents.

Surprisingly, he seems to have been just as innocent of Washington reality as his campaign drummers boasted. He told us he would never lie to us and, lo and behold, sure enough he hadn't at least after he showed an ignorance of the determination and ferocity which these traditional, periodic manumts commonly attain, as well as the political damage they commonly leave behind. His understanding of the Congress seems to have been of the perfunctory textbook variety. If he was aware of the formidable power lodged in caves like the Senate Finance Committee, he took no cautions to accommodate with it. Nor did he seem to grasp the fact that since Watergate the Congress has been of a strong mind to teach presidents frequent lessons of humility.

These were flaws of innocence. So was the overselling of his ambitious domestic programs. The energy program, tax reform and welfare reform together composed a legislative package whose passage would have required the ability to pass a miracle. To get any single one in a full congressional term would have been an astonishing coup for a new president. Each is the stuff that government struggles at for years before anything is enacted. To get all three un-mangled is the stuff of presidential pipe dreams.

By creating inflated expectations, he is now paying in lowered reputation, but nothing irreversible has yet been lost, particularly if the first year in Washington has improved his education. The domestic program could all be scrapped temporarily and tackled next time around with more reasonable hope of success, thus turning this year of harsh education into long-term political profit.

Those who accepted the Carter election without undue illusion might even observe that his real strengths then remain real strengths today. He is decent, honest, open, at peace with himself and a man of goodwill. This is really a good bit to find in a president. If this year's education makes him more nearly competent, he may make one of the serviceable ones.

Public opinion: letters to the editor

Fishing regulations

Editor, Times-News:
I am writing to the Idaho Fish and Game Commission at this time to make my views regarding fishing regulations in my area for 1978 known to you.

First with regard to the catch and release section on Big Wood River from Hulen Meadows bridge upstream to the confluence with North Fork. I have watched this stretch closely during the summer and fall this fall. The use has increased substantially as more and more people become conscious of the quality regulation.

In the area behind my house anywhere from one or two to a dozen anglers will be there on weekends and someone every day. The regulation has not been enforced. I have personally waded over 30 anglers in the area along the highway and yet only one arrest was made all season long. The sign should be simplified. I plead guilty to having approved the sign in the first place. Unfortunately most people can't understand it.

Conservation officers should be instructed to enforce regulations even though they may not personally agree with them. If they won't and show no evidence of complying, they should be either transferred or fired. If they are supervising them are incapable of obtaining their compliance with commission policy, they should be subject to serious disciplinary action.

I recommend that the regulation remain the same and that enforcement personnel be strictly instructed to enforce it.

Secondly, with regard to the catch and release section of Big Wood River from US 93 upstream to Maple Dam. I believe this regulation should remain in effect. Despite the substantial fish loss this summer, and the encouragement of the gummy sack brigade to discontinue what was left, there are still fish. And the few catch and release fishermen who will use it in the early spring and during warm winter days will discourage poachers who habitually remove fish from all winter long.

Also it will help the area from becoming a blank spot in the enforcement officer's mind.

Thirdly, with regard to the catch and release regulation on the fly-only water of Little Wood River: without this regulation this year, the Bear Tracks water would have been badly over-fished. There was very little water and only the lower stretch was able to support any large fish because of the excellent bank cover and the buildup of moss which kept the water cool and deep.

row the upper stretch was invaded by cattle. The bank cover was denuded on both sides of the stream as the C.O. who is supposed to check this stretch at least once a week must have let it go for a considerably longer period of time and the illegal goes grazed contentedly until everything was gone. I have found it hard to understand the near complete incompetence of the people involved.

I would never have been informed if I hadn't happened to walk into the Jerome office one day after it had already happened. I had been away on a trip. I shoulder to think about the fate of land given over to fish and game management in this is what is done all over. I must see an attempt to do a good job with this property or it will revert to the Nature Conservancy with a really bad black eye for the department. I'm really upset about this. The area is poached regularly. I have yet to go down there without finding evidence of bait fishing.

I always take it (the evidence) away with me and yet find further evidence each time. To my knowledge there has never, I mean NEVER, been an arrest made for illegal fishing in the Bear Tracks stretch in the last five years! It is fished illegally all the time. I suspect it is mostly at night but have chased poachers off in the daytime as well.

Fourthly, with regard to the regulations on Silver Creek. I recommend that they remain unchanged with the possible exception of allowing the use of float tubes in the lower several hundred yards of the Conservancy property. As long as the fish are nonconsumptive, it won't hurt and it will help take some of the pressure off the upper waterable stretch.

A few more items: I don't please change the duty of fly-fishing as recommended by the (ugh) sportsmen at the meeting in Jerome.

2. Ask Joe to investigate the circumstances under which Stu Murfett sent out the notices of the public meeting in Jerome to the local papers. He knows we have weekly updates here and that they are being sent out Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday. They didn't receive the notices until the Monday of the meeting! He is violently prejudiced against quality regulations. He didn't want the sportsmen from up here to be represented. That is what you called a conservation educator. Doesn't that make you want to puke?

3. I think it would be a good idea to eliminate the year-round section on Little Wood River above Richfield. The big fish are being hit very hard all winter long by the all-nighters and everyone is in the act during the spawning season. I believe it should be closed from Oct. 31 till sometime in April. Some sort of protection during spawning season is of paramount importance. This is a small stream and these big fish are easily spotted on the reds and easy prey to a persistent angler. Brown trout reproduction is not all that good this latter. I do, however, mean every word of it.

Energy fiction?

Editor, Times-News:
Decried about the "Energy Shortage?"

Decried about the "Energy Shortage?" NO WAY! The present energy program of President Carter is one of the biggest con games in history. Consider: Dr. Vincent E. McKelvey, director of the U.S. Geological Survey for the past six years, was recently fired by the Senate for incompetence. No, while Carter is determined to force a tax/energy program through Congress (the tax of $100 billion, Dr. McKelvey reported in the Wall Street Journal that as much as 60,000 to 80,000 trillion cubic feet of natural gas may be lying in the geo-pressured zones underlying the Gulf Coast region.

That's 300 to 400 times the amount of natural gas the U.S. will consume this year. "This amount is almost incomprehensible," says Dr. McKelvey, and "even the bottom range represents 10 times the energy value of all oil, gas and coal reserves in the U.S." He also stated "a large amount of oil is still to be found in the U.S."

What's the answer? De-regulate natural gas. Make it profitable to tap these sources of natural gas and it would bust the OPEC cartel wide open. We would no longer be dependent upon a foreign source of energy. Those same sources now hold 19 percent of our treasury bills, making them out biggest creditor.

Mr. Carter's energy plan is nothing more than a "redistribute the wealth" plan, but it won't produce one gallon of oil or one cubic foot of natural gas. Why is Mr. Carter so determined to have his energy crisis? He has threatened to veto any measure that de-regulates natural gas. Let's face it — energy control is people control and that is the name of the game in the Carter administration. If it were anything else, why was Dr. McKelvey bounced for telling the American people the truth?

Perhaps some letters to Congress demanding some answers would be appropriate!

US power lines create thin web

By KENNETH R. CLARK
United Press International

Officials of the nation's light and power companies have learned to avoid two phrases as they survey the thin electrical web their technology has stretched between civilization and the shadows of the dark ages.

"They do not say, 'only in New York.'"

"They do not say, 'it can't happen here.'"

Since July 13, when a sudden blackout plunged New York City into 25 hours of anarchy, looting and arson, they check, they check, and they worry.

"You're playing probabilities," said Dave Rayburn of the Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co. in Oklahoma City. "You can have all the backup systems in the world and something goes lousy."

"At least for the short term, we're in good shape... but into the next decade, there may be trouble," said Carl Osborne of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

Officials of the San Antonio Public Service Co. learned the hard way that it could happen in their city.

They were almost 100 per cent sure it couldn't after the New York disaster. The city was protected not only by its own modern backup system, but by a regional network in which nine other Texas utilities could come to the rescue. The power men deemed a blackout "extremely unlikely."

Yet, at 7:07 p.m. on Oct. 16, the lights went out.

In a faint but grim echo from the sidewalks of New York, scattered looting followed. It came nowhere near the 4 billion-plus ratings that devastated New York's decaying inner city, but it was frightening.

"Who would have thought this kind of situation would have developed?" said Bob McCulloch of the City Public Service Co. "You can never be 100 per cent sure."

Jacksonville, Fla., also got its taste of darkness, though Hubert Chapman, director of the city's electric authority, refuses to use the term "blackout."

He said the problem on Sept. 12, was a "brownout" because the downtown area never was without power. Still,

MANHATTAN IN DARKNESS, NEW JERSEY LIGHTS BRIGHT
... during massive blackout on July 13 this year

suburban areas were dark for as long as four hours.

"I will not tell you it can't happen again," he said.

"Although, generating stations, are super-grounded, lightning, could cause a blackout in Jacksonville under certain conditions."

Boston also had its blackout blues on Oct. 5 when a four square mile area was plunged into darkness.

The duration was short and Boston was spared a looting spree, but the incident seemed to be part of a growing malaise.

Los Angeles and San Francisco are two metropolitan areas in which an extended power failure might trigger the terror that sacked some New York neighborhoods.

Carl Osborne of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power worried about the possibility of "a chain of events."

"The construction of new coal and nuclear power plants... the only energy sources we can count on for the next 10 to 20 years."

"The lead times are very long and plants should be under construction, and they're not," he said.

"At least for the short term we're in good shape... but into the next decade, there may be some trouble."

A Pacific Gas & Electric spokesman in San Francisco said his city, unlike New York, is not an isolated entity and can fall back on "multiple lines" fed by California, Washington and Oregon.

"Con Ed in New York is an island in a sense, with power coming in from three or four outside sources," he said.

"When it cannot draw from them there is that domino effect."

"Since the first great New York blackout in the 60s, we've had seven events... which were larger than those that triggered the New York blackouts, yet by immediately isolating areas by shedding load, we have caused no more than a flicker of lights for most of our customers."

Richard Dwyer of the Duquesne Light Co. in Pittsburgh was not so optimistic.

"Anything is possible," he said. "We don't think it's probable... No way human error or mechanical errors can be prevented. There's always a possibility of an accident anywhere."

Stephen Jones, of the Missouri Public Service Co., which is "spread rather thin" where power plants are concerned, also was a worried man.

"If there's any healthy load growth, the summer of '81 could be a nervous summer," he said.

"Energy production and transmission... is considered the most complex technical system in the history of man. You put in safety features and hope they are adequate."

Only in Seattle, where heavy rainfall and rolling rivers provide a almost inexhaustible supply of hydroelectric power, was there anything approximating a cry of "it can't happen here."

The very local blackout lasted from 2:30 a.m. until 10 a.m.

Greater pressure on indicted pair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department, stonewalled by fugitive rice dealer Tongson Park, will try to pressure two other accused conspirators in the Korean influence-buying scandal to become government witnesses.

Sources said Sunday the investigation has not stalled merely because Park, the central figure in the case, refused to meet with Justice Department officials in Seoul last week.

But, sources said, if investigators are to fully trace any payoffs to congressmen and other officials, testimony now is all the more vital from former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., and Korean-born businessman Hanchu Kim.

Hanna and Kim face separate trials beginning Jan. 9.

Prosecutors hope to have enough evidence to create "the threat of a heavy jail sentence" if the two refuse to tell what they know about the alleged scheme to peddle gifts, favors and cash to members of Congress to ensure favorable U.S. military and economic policies.

Investigators believe the two men could help explain what was left unclear in three days of hearings last week before the House ethics committee, which is conducting a separate, parallel investigation.

Sources said investigators will continue to release Park's documents, causing further embarrassment to the Seoul government which denies involvement in the plot. Ironically, the investigation could cost the Koreans the very thing the alleged scheme was designed to protect — foreign aid.

President Carter is proposing $900 million worth of arms to be turned over to the Koreans, one official said. "Congress may just say, 'The hell with them.'"

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said Saturday he feared many lawmakers would note the Seoul government's attitude toward the investigation in future votes on aid to Seoul. The West Virginian urged Korea to change its stance.

Food store rule drawn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Regulations on subjects ranging from the personal cleanliness of employees to the material used in meat-cutting blocks are being proposed by the federal government to keep "the nation's 20,000 grocery stores up to par."

The regulations are included in a proposed model law for state and local jurisdictions to be announced by the Food and Drug Administration. Officials said no such model ordinance has ever been written "for the retail food store industry."

The proposal will be published Tuesday in the Federal Register. It will invite industry and public comment for 90 days before the FDA decides the form of the regulations.

The guidelines include recommendations for the minimum height of the floor at which food can be stored — six inches; the internal temperature to which roast beef in deli cases must be cooked — 130°F; the presence of "live animals" inside stores — forbidden except for guide dogs for the blind; and the personal cleanliness of store employees.

Proclamation seeks Young ouster

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson has proclaimed the 32nd birthday of the United Nations as "Removal of Andrew J. Young Day."

In a three-page proclamation, the conservative Republican governor urged New Hampshire citizens to request that the state's two congressmen support a House resolution calling for the ouster of the U.N. ambassador. The proclamation also called on the United States to withdraw from the world body.

The United Nations was founded 32 years ago today in San Francisco.

Thomson, in his capacity as chairman of the national Conservative Caucus, has circulated petitions calling for Young's ouster. He has frequently urged that the country withdraw from the U.N.

The proclamation says Young should be banished for "blatantly, flagrantly and relentlessly" repudiating the concepts of freedom and self-determination which fostered the founding of the world body. Among the reasons Thomson gave to support Young's ouster were his welcoming "without opposition the Communist murderers of Vietnam to the United Nations," characterizing two former Presidents as racists; describing Cuban troops in Africa as a "stabilizing force" insulting the governments of South Africa, Sweden and Great Britain, and urging Israel to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"I urge all of our citizens to beseech New Hampshire's congressmen to support the impeachment resolution now entered in the U.S. House of Representatives," Thomson said.

Heavy loss in revenue to boycott

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago, one of the nation's major convention cities, has lost an estimated $15 million in revenue because of a new tactic aimed at ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau officials say.

Elsewhere, cities such as Miami and Las Vegas report their losses also are in the millions of dollars.

The revenue losses are due to agreement among 40 national organizations to keep their conventions out of states that have not ratified the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

No aid cut
HOUSE Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona said in a television interview Sunday he opposes cutting aid to South Korea in retaliation for Seoul's lack of cooperation with the Capitol Hill influence-buying investigation.

US job protection shift proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's civil rights reorganization task force wants the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to protect federal workers from job discrimination.

The increased jurisdiction for EEOC, once one of the most criticized federal agencies, is a major recommendation of the Office of Management and Budget task force that has been working since last May.

Civil Service Commission jurisdiction over equal employment for federal employees will be transferred to the EEOC if the recommendation is followed.

The task force proposals have not yet reached Carter's desk, however, but currently are being circulated at the Cabinet level for comment.

They view EEOC as a potential "super agency," which ultimately will handle nearly all equal employment opportunity cases.

A memo being circulated noted that federal equal employment programs were all too often "overlapping" with "inconsistent standards of compliance."

It called for transfer from the Civil Service Commission to the EEOC of authority to enforce Title VII employment provisions of the Civil Rights Act, the Equal Pay Act and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act as they apply to federal workers. Labor Department power to enforce the Equal Pay Act also would be transferred to the EEOC under the proposal.

Employment opportunity enforcement effort, as it applies to its own employees, has been and continues to be poor," the draft memo said.

The record of the Civil Service Commission in this regard has been the subject of harsh criticism.

"Employees of the federal government believe that they are not accorded as much protection from employment discrimination as are their counterparts in private industry," it added.

Eleven agencies now have authority to carry out Executive Order 11246, a presidential order which forbids discrimination in employment by anyone who holds a federal contract. The recommendations call for those efforts to be consolidated in the Labor Department.

They also suggest President Carter consider proposing legislation to give EEOC power to conduct administrative hearings leading to cease and desist orders and amend Title VII to let EEOC file pattern or practice suits against private industry.

'Big' groups have say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Big business, big labor, and big colleges have placed many representatives on the advisory committees that help Uncle Sam form policy, Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., says.

Metcalf's subcommittee on reports used a new Library of Congress index to analyze membership of 149 different federal advisory committees, commissions, councils, boards and panels.

The analysis found "patterns of personal, corporate, and other institutional influence on these groups, which advise the federal government in virtually every area of policymaking," the senator said Sunday.

Eighty-two companies, led by American Telephone and Telegraph Co., has from 20 to 120 members on the advisory groups, the report said. Each of 14 universities, led by the University of California, has from 25 to 294 members, and each of four unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO has from 20 to 24 members on advisory groups.

"Some members get on more than one group as well, Metcalf said.

"Research...discloses that 173 persons serve on anywhere from four to 12 advisory committees," he said in a statement. Eight persons served on eight or more groups.

The senator said patterns of personal, corporate and other institutional representation on advisory committees raise the question of whether agencies should consider rotating advisers in order to obtain fresh viewpoints.

Even if President Carter succeeds in reducing the number of advisory panels, the cuts should be done with care, he contended.

Prince tours Armstrong ranch

PRINCE CHARLES

ARMSTRONG, Tex. (UPI) — Prince Charles of Great Britain Sunday toured the ranch of former ambassador Anne Armstrong, inspecting a herd of cattle, taking part in a polo game and dining on Texas-style barbecue.

The prince was scheduled to spend the night with the Armstrongs and resume the public part of his visit today with a tour of the Johnson Space Center at Houston. He will be invited to fly a mission segment in space shuttle simulators accompanied by his U.S. astronaut hosts.

After a visit to Saks department store in Houston, Charles was scheduled to unveil a plaque commemorating the arrival of the first direct British-Caledonian flight from London to Houston Intercontinental Airport.

The prince also was scheduled to speak at a dinner given by the City of Houston, where he was to receive an honorary degree from the Stevens Institute of Technology.

Woman jailed for jaywalking

DENVER (UPI) — A young woman spent 13 days in the city jail while awaiting trial on a jaywalking charge. And a county judge wants to know why.

"I intend to find out exactly what happened to that woman," Denver County Judge Karen Metzger said. "This is the first time since I've been a judge that anything remotely approaching this has occurred."

Judge Metzger said Jeanine Powers of Denver was brought into her courtroom Friday wearing a man-tailored white gown and handcuffs. The judge said she discovered Ms. Powers, about 22, had been in jail since Oct. 7.

"She was very polite, very nice," the judge said of Ms. Powers, who could not be reached for comment. "She didn't seem to be as upset as I was."

According to a ticket in Ms. Powers' file, she was cited for jaywalking in Denver on May 15 and ordered to appear in court by June 15. She didn't appear in court, and a summons was issued. She was arrested Oct. 7.

Ms. Powers pleaded innocent before County Judge Greg Mueller. Mueller apparently set bail for her, although he said Friday he had "no specific recollection" of Ms. Powers.

Governor may refund fines

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — An aide says Gov. Richard Snodgrass is studying the possibility of refunding fines paid by those convicted of crimes because of testimony by a former narcotics agent.

Former Gov. Thomas Salmon last year pardoned more than 70 people whose convictions were based solely on the testimony of agent Paul Lawrence, who is now in jail for 1973 perjury convictions in District and Superior court.

However, Salmon did not act on a recommendation that fines be remitted to people who paid penalties to the state because of their convictions.

At least a dozen people who received pardons have reportedly contacted the state about the fines.

William Gilbert, counsel to the governor, said Sunday he expects to study the matter before he decides what to recommend to Snodgrass.

HHH 'back where he belongs'

HUBERT HUMPHREY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, clinging to a "never give up" spirit despite inoperable cancer, is "back where he belongs" today. He returned to Washington aboard Air Force One.

Humphrey, who has been undergoing treatment in Minneapolis for two months, returned to the nation's capitol Sunday for the first time since an operation in August found the inoperable tumor in the pelvic area.

President Carter ended a three-day trip through the Midwest and West by stopping in Minneapolis on his return from Los Angeles to pick up the ailing senator.

Humphrey, Carter said, is "the greatest American that I know, the No. 1 Democrat in our country and a man ... admired throughout the world."

"It's going to mean a great deal to our country to have him back where he belongs, again serving the American people," Carter told a crowd of well-wishers at the airport.

Court crier

New name on ballots

DENVER (UPI) — The National Prohibition Party, formed 108 years ago on an anti-liquor and pro-family platform, says it will make a trial name change in 1978 in an attempt to attract more voters.

Earl F. Dodge, vice presidential candidate of the party and its only paid executive, said party officials will use the new name on election ballots next year to convince people prohibitionists are concerned with more than just alcohol.

Dodge, who operates the party's national headquarters from a two-story home in west Denver, said party leaders were polled on three names — the National Statesman Party, the Good Government Party and the Family Protection Party.

BAMBERG, S.C. (UPI) — Elgin W. McMillan plans to stay on the job as long as he's needed, but jobs like his are rapidly disappearing.

McMillan, 83, is one of the few remaining court criers in South Carolina.

While several of the state's 46 counties have turned the criers' duties over to bailiffs, Bamberg County so far has retained the position.

McMillan, a retired farmer who has lived almost all his life in this Lowcountry county of South Carolina, says criers are needed and points out that state law back him up.

"The court crier's got to be there or there won't be no court," he said.

McMillan has been the court crier for 12 years and said he plans to continue in the job "as long as they need me."

"I got a book on it, but I don't even use it," he said.

His predecessor had suffered a stroke and could not talk, so McMillan took over as a favor at first, letting the man continue to collect the $10 a day salary. Eventually, he was appointed to the job.

Leaving over the railing outside the second-floor courtroom last week, McMillan's gravel voice bellowed Bamberg County clerk of court, said McMillan is a courthouse fixture.

"If there's any hellin' to be done, he does it," Kirkland said.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune & News Synd Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am an executive in a company that has a large sales department. A few days ago, the wife of one of our top salesmen came and asked me to fire her husband. She said she had it on good authority that her husband is having an affair with a young secretary in the company. The wife said I thought her husband was too valuable to the company to let go. I should fire the girl. She said she was sure her husband could easily get another job if he were forced to, and the affair would probably cool off if they weren't working together.

Should I get involved in the domestic problems of one of my salesmen? Or do you think if a man does his job well, what he does on his own time is his own business?

NO IDENTITIES, PLEASE.

Woman wants husband fired

DEAR NO: Call the salesman in, and tell him that word of his alleged hanky-panky with a secretary has reached the front office. And let him take it from there.

DEAR ABBY: I am one of 20 draftsman working in a large engineering office with a lot of female secretaries. Abby, do you think a man should be complimented when she enters a room and a man whistles at her?

One guy here insists that the girls love it. I say no woman wants to be treated as a sex-object, and whistling at a woman is an insult.

I'd like a woman's point of view.

T.C. IN HOUSTON

DEAR T.C.: THIS woman's point of view is the same as yours. (P.S. Whistling at women also indicates a juvenile mentality.)

DEAR ABBY: My young grandson has a very peculiar way of eating—he will eat only one thing at a time. For example: if there is meat, potatoes, carrots and peas on his plate, he will finish eating all the meat before he even touches his carrots. Then, once he starts eating his carrots, he will taste nothing else until he's finished them. He positively refuses to mix his food. Now isn't that ridiculous?

When I try to tell him to eat a bit of one thing and then another, he says he doesn't want to. He refuses to even try.

I don't know whether this comes under the heading of etiquette, idiosyncrasies, health or habits; but it just looks peculiar to me, Abby.

Please classify this quirk and set me straight.

GRAMPS

DEAR GRAMPS: I would classify this as nitpicking. Children come in for enough criticism during their childhood without having something as inconsequential as this being called to their attention. Skip it. What's the difference? Be glad he's healthy and can eat everything.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box, No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—

My husband has been under a doctor's care for over two months for chronic gastritis. He is on a bland diet and he takes a white pill four times a day.

He is getting no better and has pains all the time. Could you explain what gastritis is? He stays on a diet but he is losing weight. He was 167 and is now 154.

'Itis' means inflammation

Dear Reader—

Always remember that "itis" means inflammation. Gastritis, then, means inflammation of the stomach. The lining may show areas of increased redness and erosion and small hemorrhagic spots.

Gastritis may be an acute self-limited disease as may occur with some forms of food poisoning or after alcohol ingestion. These are best treated with a bland diet such as Jell-O, milk, puddings and such foods with no starches and, of course, avoiding the factor that caused it, such as alcohol.

Acute gastritis from food poisoning is usually caused by some bacteria. The duration of the illness is short and the bland diet plus measures to support the patient, such as fluids if needed, are given temporarily.

Chronic gastritis is a bit more difficult. The condition persists and may or may not cause pain. It, too, is treated by a bland diet and sometimes antacids and medicines to prevent the formation of acid digestive juices.

There are many causes for gastritis, including underlying liver disease. An offending agent may cause the inflammation by direct contact into the stomach or by way of the blood stream after it is absorbed. Authorities do not agree whether alcohol causes gastritis by dissolving the protective layer on the stomach lining or by way of the blood stream. Aspirin has a direct action on the lining. The combination of alcohol and aspirin is particularly apt to cause irritation and acute gastritis.

Aspirin is particularly apt to cause irritation and acute gastritis. A great deal more difficult than treatment of acute gastritis, other than the bland diet and measures to neutralize the acid formed by the stomach there is a limited number of things that can be done. You have to let nature gradually heal the condition. Of course, avoiding alcohol, aspirin and following a proper diet are musts in such cases. The proper diet means also eliminating all coffee in all forms, tea, cola, cocoa and chocolate.

A medicine with bismuth type action (decanthosone) is sometimes used and that may be what your husband's doctor is giving your husband.

Cigarettes should also be eliminated.

For information about ulcers and their treatment send 50 cents for The Health Letter-number 1-6, Ulcers—Duodenal, Stomach. Include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You can help to shatter the medical mystique by learning what to say to your doctor and when and how to say it. You can learn when to speak up, to be assertive without being offensively aggressive, to participate in decisions about your care without telling the doctor his business, to assess your interaction with the doctor and to critically evaluate the care he gives you without becoming a doctor-hopper.

The following guidelines can help you get the most out of your communication with doctors and improve the efficiency and quality of the medical care you receive: — Always check your understanding of what the doctor has told you about your condition and its treatment. Repeat to the doctor in your own words the nature of the problem and what you're supposed to do about it. Even better, write it down right there in the doctor's office.

— Doctors deliberately use medical jargon to impress their patients. Most use it inadvertently, forgetting that not everyone understands that, for example, hypertension means high blood pressure and not high-strung or under stress. Ask the doctor to translate any word or phrase he may use that you're not certain you understand.

— Tell your doctor all details about your health, including your personal and your family's medical history ("crazy" relatives and all), stressful factors in your life, illnesses that you may regard as shameful, drugs you may use or abuse (including alcohol). It's not your job to decide what is and what is not relevant to your condition. Tell your doctor everything and let him decide.

Nor is it a virtue when consulting with a doctor to deny the facts of your illness. When you pass a neighbor on the street and he says: "Hi, how are you?" you reply, "Fine," even if you're really falling apart. But when your doctor asks that question, it's your duty to tell him you've been having trouble sleeping, or your back hurts, or your marriage is on the rocks or whatever ails you mentally or physically. Half or more of the physical problems brought to doctors turn out to have an emotional basis, so if your doctor is going to be able to arrive at a proper diagnosis and treatment, he needs to know what is going on in your head as well as what is going on in your body.

— Prepare for your visit to the doctor by carefully observing your condition and by making a list of what you want to tell or ask him. Be concise but give detailed information — not "I get stomach aches." "I get a sharp pain on the right side of my abdomen an hour or two after eating. A big meal." You might even rehearse beforehand how you will discuss a particularly delicate matter such as an embarrassing problem or your desire to see a consulting physician.

— Be sure your doctor explains the benefits and risks of and alternatives to the treatment he recommends. If he suggests surgery, for example, ask him what other treatments might be tried first or what would happen if he decide not to have the operation at this time.

If he prescribes a drug, what are the side effects you might experience and how should you cope with them? Too many patients fill the prescription, take a few pills, decide the cure is worse than the disease, and, without telling the doctor, stop taking the medicine or change the dosage. Side effects (known or suspected) that disturb you should be reported to your doctor immediately. He may modify how you take the drug or prescribe another less troublesome medication.

You should request a consultation with another physician under the following circumstances: If your doctor is unable to make a definite diagnosis within a reasonable length of time, say two or three visits, if he says you have a serious chronic or potentially fatal illness, such as diabetes or cancer; if your illness has an emotional basis, or if surgery is recommended as the treatment or to aid in diagnosis.

— Tell the doctor if you are unhappy about the way he or his office assistants or answering service have treated you. Tell him if you feel rushed, brushed aside, talked down to. If you think he isn't hearing what you're saying or he has given you a treatment regimen that you know will disrupt your life in a way that will greatly reduce your chances of following it.

Your doctor doesn't have to be as sympathetic as your best friend and you don't have to "love" him. But he or she should be someone you feel listens to you — both to your verbal and your nonverbal messages — and in whom you can confide about matters that may affect your health. If you have no rapport with your doctor or he fails to take the time to "see" you as a whole person as well as a collection of organs, you might want to consider finding another physician.

In "How to Talk to Doctors," (Arco Publishing Company, $1.75), Dr. John Verby of the University of Minnesota Medical School and Jane Verby recommend the following steps before you call your doctor about an illness:

1. Take your temperature and record it.
2. Jot down the things that bother you, such as headache, dizziness when standing, sore throat, aching ear.
3. Recall when your condition began and whether other symptoms may have preceded your present ones.
4. List the order in which your symptoms appeared.
5. Know what medications you are presently taking, how much and how often.
6. Decide what you want from the doctor — an appointment to discuss your condition and decide on a treatment; a complete physical examination; advice over the phone; a decision as to how to proceed from here.
7. Consider how urgent your need is to see the doctor and what days and hours are best for you to make an appointment. And be sure to call if you find you cannot get to the doctor at the appointed time.

Dolls make ageless hobby

SURROUNDED by Shirleys, Mary Stuechner, 47, of East Detroit, believes there is no age barrier when it comes to being interested in dolls. She has a special collection to prove it. She has spent the last seven years collecting Shirley Temple dolls manufactured primarily in the Thirties and late Fifties. She hopes to start a Shirley Temple museum.

Facial design book tells makeup steps

© 1977 Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — Elizabeth Taylor's bathroom on hubby John Warner's Virginia farm isn't air conditioned.

Farah Fawcett-Majors isn't crazy about her hairstyle anymore, but she's afraid to tamper with her trademark.

Barbra Streisand adds yellow to her makeup base, because she looks like a rosy baby a la natural.

Who says? Why Bandy, the $1,000-a-shot makeup artist who has done makeup jobs on all of them — plus Cher, Catherine Deneuve, Margaux Hemingway, Marie Osmond, Barbara Walters, model Lauren Hutton and hundreds of other celebrities including the late Martha Mitchell, whom he turned into a glamor queen for a New York magazine photo.

He also has done some pretty nifty sleight of hand-and-brush on a lot of very famous men — most recently ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov and rock start Mick Jagger, Peter Frampton and Kristofferson for photographic sessions.

Between toodling around from famous face to famous face, Bandy took a month off and fled to his house on Nantucket Island to write a book, "Designing Your Face," to tell you how to make the most of yours with the aid of such things as home-made yogurt skin conditioner, corn meal scrub and an egg yolk, honey and yogurt mask before you get around to the expensive stuff.

It's published by Random House, which presently has Bandy jelling around the country to tempt women and men into shelling out $2.95 to find out how they can look better, if not beautiful. It's an amazingly informative, sensible, easy-to-follow guide to analyzing your own face and doing the best for it. It also has high print, and excellent how-to illustrations.

Bandy arrived in town looking like a New York version of a Southern planter. He was wearing a black string tie with his black blazer, gray flannel slacks, white shirt and Gucci loafers. That figures. He was born (sometime between 35 and 45 years ago) and reared in Alabama, and has lived in New York since 1967.

At this point, I let it's only fair to tell you that Bandy and I arrived in New York from the South about the same time, and two years later, after he became creative makeup director of Cher's, of the Ritz, I let him do my makeup for a party.

He's the only hotshot who ever did my makeup (and there have been many of them) who didn't make me look like a blond, Chinese hooker.

You hear a lot of blah-blah about beauty begins within, and discovering the real you. Bandy really believes it, and practices it on every one of his clients. He thinks only Elizabeth Taylor should look like Elizabeth Taylor, and that flaws can be beautiful.

In fact, he said, if he had it all to do over, he doubts that he would have the nose job he had done a few years ago when he also had a "temporal" facelift. He likes his new nose, but he has come around to thinking that he probably would have gotten along very well with the old one.

A vegetarian who goes to a naturopath, takes natural vitamins and believes in reincarnation, Bandy does not say everyone can be beautiful. "Beauty is a gift, and I believe those who have it earned it in past lifetimes. But everyone can be attractive and appealing if they'll work at it."

"The first thing I have to get a client to do is think, 'I'm not like anybody else.' Then we can begin to bring out this individuality in the most attractive way."

Then he said something that sounded totally contradictory. "I've done every face exactly the same way since I started." Then he explained, "What was different is every face. The basic pattern and the ground rules are the same (bringing up the good points, taking down the bad and knowing when a flaw can work for you instead of against you.)"

He said, frankly, that he was scared to do "it" when he went down to the Warner farm to do Elizabeth Taylor's makeup for a magazine photo last summer. "She told me she was scared to death, too, because she always did her own makeup. She even did it for 'Cleopatra.'"

"It was as bad as all get-out. There wasn't any air conditioning in her bathroom. Country music was blaring through the house. And we had a great time, and I think she was really happy with the results."

What does a famous makeup artist do to such a renowned beauty as Liz Taylor? For one thing, he changed her eye shadow from blue to smoky brown. As for the men, he said the job was to make them look better without detectable makeup.

Debby Boone takes off in dad's path

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — She's blonde, squeaky clean, drinks milk and attends church regularly, just like her father. And just like old dad, she's a singer. She also has a record at the top of the charts.

Her name is Debby Boone. Her father is Pat Boone. And the No. 1 single recording today is Debby's rendition of "You Light Up My Life."

Debby, 21, has some catching up to do, however, if she hopes to keep pace with her famous father. Papa Boone has earned 15 gold platters, sold some 40 million records and consumed considerably more milk than his golden-haired daughter.

Debby got her start at age 8 as part of the Boone family singers. Along with sisters Cherry, 23, Linda, 22, and Laury, 19, she still travels with the troupe.

The Boone clan is a good argument for those who believe music runs in families. Country and western star Red Foley is Debby's grandfather. The Boone home has been filled with music since her infancy.

Debby emerged as lead singer among her sisters in the years the girls have traveled in this country and abroad, performing with their father and mother, Shirley. Encouraged by her parents,

Debby finally decided to try it solo. "Dad has always asked me to take things slowly," Debby said. "And I thought maybe 'You Light Up My Life' had some potential."

"I certainly didn't expect it to go right to the top in only eight weeks. Dad is as excited and surprised as I am. He's made some TV appearances with me since the record took off and he talks about it more than I do."

Debby is a somewhat shy young woman who continues to live at home with her parents and sister Laury. Cherry and Linda are married.

She is bright, ambitious and a peculiarly old fashioned figure in the world of pop recording artists.

Debby doesn't have a boyfriend. Her interests are home oriented and her values are the product of her Protestant religious beliefs.

"I like living at home," she said. "It's nice to come home every night to family and friends."

"One of these days I'll probably be getting a place of my own. But my mother and father would like to keep me and Laury at home forever."

"I've been sheltered all right. I haven't been exposed to a lot of things in the world that I really wouldn't want to be exposed to. You could say I'm naive to a degree but I think I know what I need to know at this stage of my life."

"Being sheltered is a positive thing to me, not negative. I'll learn the rest as I go along."

Debby follows her father's advice professionally. And while he doesn't act as a singing coach, Papa Boone does bring her songs and offers suggestions about his daughter's career moves.

"I value Dad's advice about not doing too many things at once," she said. "Some young performers start fast and fade just as quickly."

"There have been a couple of acting offers for television shows and some movie scripts. But I'm not accepting those things yet. Dad has no objections to an acting career for me but he thinks singing is keeping me busy enough."

"For the time being both Mom and Dad want me to continue traveling and singing with the family on weekends, holidays and during the summer."

"I've already cut my first album, including 'You Light Up My Life.' None of the songs are ones that Daddy's done."

"Someday I'd love to record 'Friendly Persuasion' and 'April Love.' Both of them were tremendous hits for Dad. I'd like to do 'Exodus' too. Dad wrote the lyrics for that one."

"There's a similarity in the quality of our voices. Maybe no one else notices it, but it's very clear to me in some of his older recordings."

Debby classifies herself as a middle-of-the-road vocalist as opposed to a rock or country artist. But she is aware that young singers today must be versatile.

"I like ballads," she said, "but I can do country rock and pop stuff too."

"I want to be more involved with my next album. I don't want to just come into the studio to sing. I want to be part of the arranging and work with the producer on the mix so I'll be totally happy with the final outcome."

Debby Boone hopes she can follow in her father's footsteps as a recording star. So far, thanks to her family, milk and the church, Debby appears to be on the right track.

Orienteering

Fairfield woman sets mark

MOSCOW — A Fairfield woman has achieved a first in the history of orienteering at the University of Idaho. Marcia Wells is the first coed here to pass the two-day map and compass course on the first trial. She said other women have passed it, but not on their first attempt. The test is part of a search and rescue class in recreation. Miss Wells' field of study.

A UI sophomore, she is the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Lee, Box 282, Fairfield. Her instructor, St. Maj. Gene Neff, UI Department of Military Science, said she and her partner, Doug Flansburg, Palouse-Wash., not only passed the course during a recent trial, but finished relatively early compared to others in the class. "They finished about noon on Saturday," he said. Students were given from 7:30 a.m. Saturday through 3 p.m. on Sunday to complete the test. The test course was set up at Laird Park, a state park about 30 miles northwest of Moscow. Miss Wells said that area was chosen because it offers space to set up a fairly long course in a wooded area. Students participating in the test camped out overnight in order to use as much daylight time as possible to complete the test.

Miss Wells said she had not had any experience with map and compass work before she began taking orienteering courses. She said this test was preceded with an orienteering level one exam which was laid out in and around the Shattuck Amphitheater on the UI campus. Neff said the search and rescue class is new this fall. "We have around 45 students," he said, "and I expect to see more as time goes on." The class is designed to be of benefit to members of community search and rescue units, foresters, recreation majors and others who may have occasion to participate in search and rescue operations. He said that as far as he knows this is the only such course being offered for college credit.

Search and rescue information sessions and practice tests have been offered for some time in the area, but not as an organized class for credit. Neff noted. He said a full scale practice search is planned for the end of October, also at Laird Park, to give the students a chance to practice the skills they have been learning.

NEW YORK — The venerable slide rule, once a badge of the engineering student, has become a scientific relic, as outmoded as the astrolabe in the electronic age, that has produced its successor, the pocket calculator.

Keuffel & Esser, which brought the slide rule to this country from Europe in 1886, and which sold 20,000 of its top-of-the-line rules a month in the 1950s, stopped making them a few years ago. The precision machines that the company had used to engrave the lines on its rules were donated to the Smithsonian Institution.

Now, one of the last remaining manufacturers of slide rules, the Sterling Plastics Company of Mount Pleasant, N.J., which sold more than 330,000 of them in 1972, has decided to phase them out, too. "There is no more demand for them," said the company's sales administrator, Kurt Falk.

The pocket calculator can do everything that the slide rule can do and more. It can add and subtract, which no slide rule can. It keeps track of the decimal point, which slide-rule users had to do in their heads. While slide rules are accurate to three decimal places at most, pocket calculators will give eight or 12 places, for those who need them.

While the Keuffel & Esser Log Duplex Decitrig slide rule cost $40 in the days when $40 was half a week's take-home pay, $40 today will buy a reasonably versatile calculator.

Still, slide rules continue to have their adherents. Louis Harris, the pollster, regularly uses a large one and keeps a small one handy-in his desk. "I use a slide rule for percentage as fast as I can use a calculator," Harris said. "It's just an old personal fondness. I'd hate to stand up in court and say a slide rule is better than a calculator. It's an old artifact, but I enjoy it."

"The Chinese still use an abacus," Harris said defensively. In a recent issue of The Johns Hopkins Magazine, Robert Kanigel wrote: "The most satisfying thing about slide rule was that you could see how it worked. No electronic gimmickry working black magic in a little plastic box. If you knew what a logarithm was — and anyone with a course or two in high school math ought to — you knew how a slide rule did its job."

Logarithms, invented by John Napier in 1614, provide a quick means for multiplying or dividing any two numbers by addition or subtraction. But that process requires a table of logarithms, which were developed in the 1620s, incorporated those tables. In effect, to make multiplication or division as simple as a slip of a stick.

William Keuffel, a co-founder of Keuffel & Esser, imported the first slide rules out of mahogany that was aged for five years to eliminate shrinkage after the scales were engraved.

Eventually slide rules were fashioned out of bamboo, metal or plastic and were sold as the class and caddyshack as well as in the standard 12-inch form.

Few foresaw the coming of the calculator and as recently as 1962, Keuffel & Esser introduced a new slide rule, the Decilon, "with new and more powerful scales for computation, made of a new amazingly durable synthetic," according to company literature.

Moose order schedules festivities

GLENN'S FERRY — The Loyal Order of the Moose and Women of the Moose are having a Halloween Costume party, Friday, October 28 at 9 p.m. The party will be held at the Moose Home for all members and guests. Prizes will be awarded at 10:30 for the best costumes in three categories: Men, women and couples. There will be games, dancing and a lunch with a small charge for the refreshments.

Hints

WELL WORTH IT

For dry skin, try rubbing baby oil all over after a shower, then doing your situps or bend-overs. The workout will help the oil sink in.

APPLE DABS

To complement soft clothes, look into a big, soft, squeezable pouch bag.

Castleford school selects OEA officers

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford High School Advisory Committee held a special meeting at the high school to interview and select OEA officers.

Advisory members present were Dennis Westday, Mavis Easterday, Sherry Wells and Steve Orea. OEA officers selected for the coming year are Lisa Easterday, president; Mary Easterday, vice president; and Vicki Wade, secretary.

The following morning the OEA met for a regular meeting. Members elected Donna Clark, treasurer; Julie Howard, student council representative, and Mary Zamora, reporter and historian.

In other business, the members voted to buy OEA pins with the cheer paying half of the cost, and purchasing an OEA flag, gavel and scrapbook. Members voted to have a nostalgia dance. Committee members were Donna Clark, Vicki Wade and Mary Zamora, posters;

Mary Easterday, chaperones; Julie Howard and Mary Zamora, contest prizes; and Donna Clark and Janice Van Eastern, refreshments.

Field trips and guest speakers were also discussed. Members were reminded to turn in their dues and money for their pins.

MR. AND MRS. BRENT NEAL EVANS

Allison, Evans wed

JEROME — Luree Ann Allison and Brent Neal Evans were united in marriage Oct. 8 at 2:30 at the United Presbyterian Church in Jerome.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Allison and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Evans, all Jerome.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Daniel Klingler. Traditional wedding music was played by Harriet McMurdie. Soloist Julie Wilson sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chantilly lace over white satin gown fashioned with ivory point sleeves, an empire waistline and a sheer beaded neckling with scalloped accents. A scalloped lace panel adorned the front of the gown and a cathedral train was studded with seed pearls and iridescent mother of pearl. Her finger-tip veil was caught with bandeau of chantilly lace accented with pearls.

Lori Nall, Nampa, registered the guests and Linna, Amy and Julie Thompson, cousins of the bride, Roy, Utah, were in charge of the gifts. The reception table was covered with white lace over blue and was centered with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with blue roses. The cake was baked and decorated by Dorothy Berge, a friend of the bride.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bush, grandparents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. George Alvey, grandparents of the bridegroom, both of whom were in attendance. Other guests attended from Twin Falls, Idaho: Filer, Nampa, Oregon and Utah. A kitchen shower was given by Becky Last, Theresa McLean, Honda Toiman, Sherri Ward and Cheryl Walters at the Last home.

Double wedding conducted

KING HILL — Lucille Finlayson, daughter of Mrs. Alice Finlayson and Charles Finlayson of Glenns Ferry, became the bride of Blaine H. Allen, on Friday, October 8th.

Denise York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean York, Mountain Home, became the bride of Dan Allen, in a double wedding in Elko by Justice of the Peace C.F. Lunsford in a double ring ceremony.

Miss Finlayson, chose a blue floral street dress with long sleeves and a draped neckline. Her bridal corsage was of blue carnations with white daisies, and long white satin ribbon streamers. Her attendant was her sister Cherie Finlayson of Glenns Ferry, who wore a white jacket dress with ruffles around the collar and sleeves. The granddaughters of the bride also attended her. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Craig, Glenns Ferry, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Finlayson of Shoshone, as well as her mother.

Miss York chose a dark and light blue jumper dress, and carried nosegay of pink and white roses with baby breath, with lace and white satin ribbon streamers. The attendant was Debbie Mullen of Glenns Ferry, who wore a yellow and green print dress. The granddaughters of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen, King Hill, attended them.

Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Only one shot makes game

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Oswald: "South started proceedings by refusing the spade finesse. He was sure that it would fail."

Jim: "That put him in a dumm for the first and last time. He had a chance to lead any suit except spades and try a finesse. As you can see they are all going to work, but only one will give him his contract."

Oswald: "South figured this out correctly and led a club toward his king. This left East with the choice of playing the ace of clubs or ducking. It didn't matter. South could only lose one heart, one diamond and one club trick and will make the other ten."

Jim: "If he tries the diamond finesse it will work, but he will still have to lose a trump."

Oswald: "There is another reason for the club lead being correct. Even if West has the ace of clubs, South might pick up a doubleton queen of trumps and still make the hand."

Yelton weds Anderson

KING HILL — Becky Yelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Yelton of Eagle, became the bride of Jack Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Anderson of King Hill.

The ceremony was performed on September 23 in the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Boise. The bride chose a candlelight gown length dress, with a veil. Mrs. Steven Anderson, sister-in-law of the groom, was the maid of honor. Rodney Hall, Glenns Ferry was the best man. Arlene Warkeno, Boise, was the organist. Fall flowers were used in the rooms. The reception was held in the church parlor.

The bridegroom is a 1973 graduate of Glenns Ferry High School and attended the Northern Idaho College at Coeur d'Alene, and is employed by Heaton Homes. The bride is a 1972 graduate of Meridian High School, and is employed by Hewlett-Packard. The couple is living in Meridian.

Rhodesians try new lives after taking 'chicken run'

Over 1,000 whites are leaving Rhodesia every month on what is contemptuously known, among those who stay, as "the chicken run." Here is a report on three families who left Rhodesia for England — why they left, how they are doing and how they feel about it all.

By DAVID ROSENBERG

London Telegraph
LONDON — This time last year, Michael Reynolds was enjoying the good life as one of Rhodesia's ruling elite. At 55, he was at the top of his profession as an irrigation expert in charge of a government program nurturing the village of Nayanyazi on the Mozambique border. Over 6,000 Africans depended on his skill for their daily bread.

Reynolds and his wife, Marjorie, both Rhodesia-born, lived in a four-bedroom villa surrounded by a profusion of wild flowers and luxuriant, bottle-shaped baobab trees. They owned two other homes, in Bulawayo and Maseru, and had invested in a 10-acre farm near Bulawayo for their retirement. A houseboy, a gardener and a cook were among their African servants. A joint salary of nearly $18,000 a year allowed lavish entertaining.

The escalating guerrilla war shattered this idyllic way of life. The village came under rocket attack three times this year, and in March they fought for their lives when terrorists breached the intensive security screen. It was the fiercest action Reynolds had seen since winning the Military Cross.

He called a family conference. His married son and daughter, although living in the cities, shared his despair at Rhodesia's future and agreed to bring their young families to Britain. "We could have contained the terrorists, but our loyalty stopped at getting killed in the tribal bloodshed that will follow majority rule."

As British passport holders through their parents' English nationality, the Reynolds were able to leave once their tax and army clearances came through. Reynolds arrived at Heathrow on May 8 — "feeling for all the world like a hapless refugee" — with his son and son-in-law. The wives and children followed five weeks later.

A friend had arranged for them to rent two modest cottages at about $11 a week each in the Norfolk village of Woodbastwick from the local "squire" John Cator, who also provided some furniture.

But Reynolds found his age a frustrating barrier in his attempts to get work. A lifetime in tropical farming was of little use in the Norfolk countryside. He wrote over 100 letters to no avail. John Cator again stepped in as benefactor with jobs for Reynolds and his son-in-law as farm labourers at $70 a week. "I was cleaning out stables, shifting muck, and glad to be doing it," said Reynolds.

After a month on the farm, Reynolds at last found a job with agro-chemicals manufacturer in Norwich at $83 a week. Now his future looks brighter. His family is safe and together, everybody has a job.

There are fantastic opportunities in Britain to make money. He can only lay his hands on a little capital, we'll make out just fine. I didn't leave my initiative behind."

Like many Rhodesian exiles, Reynolds is reluctant to be drawn into criticism of the country which is now harbouring his family. But he despairs of the "featherbedding" in Britain, which he believes has weakened the back of the nation. He is, however, much happier talking about the bliss of the peaceful Norfolk countryside.

The emotions of Frank and Rosemary Heaversedge are still confused seven months after they flew from Salisbury with their three children. They identify passionately with Rhodesia, have a deep, genuine affection for Africans as well as whites, and are still heart-searching traumatically about whether they could be doing on any longer.

The Heaversedge home in the Salisbury suburb of Highlands stood in two acres of grounds. Fir trees and flowers bordered the immaculate white bungalow, which boasted playrooms, two bathrooms: a study and a tennis court. As well as the usual servants, a nanny helped look after their children — Jontie, 6, James, 4, and Giles, 2 — enabling Rosemary to teach zoology part-time at the university.

Frank's clients brought him and his wife into the art world. Industry and politics. Last year Frank was a finalist in the "Young Rhodesian of the Year" contest.

The idea of majority rule in itself did not frighten the Heaversedges. What seemed to eclipse their future in the country was other people's fear of the consequences, and the resultant military buildup.

"Industry and the authorities simply stopped building, and the contracts just dried up," explained Frank. "I was away in the army so often that surrounded by a profusion of wild flowers and luxuriant, bottle-shaped baobab trees. They owned two other homes, in Bulawayo and Maseru, and had invested in a 10-acre farm near Bulawayo for their retirement. A houseboy, a gardener and a cook were among their African servants. Oil flow totaled

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — More than 50 million barrels of oil have been pumped through the 800-mile Alaska pipeline since it began operations four months ago. A spokesman for Alyeska Pipeline Services Co., builder and operator of the line, said Wednesday the oil flow has been averaging between 720,000 and 725,000 barrels daily.

The company had hoped to be pumping 1.2 million barrels a day by now, but the explosion that damaged Pump Station 8 near Fairbanks in July has kept that station out of service while repairs were underway.

A. Sir Winston Churchill, research reveals. Even the Duke of Wellington wore civilian clothes, please note.

The mysterious theory is that men and women who daily send their matrimonial mates off to work with kisses tend to be less prone to accidents.

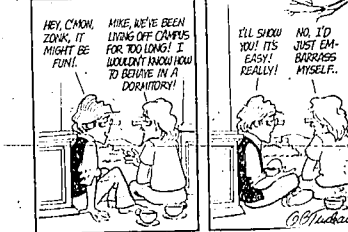

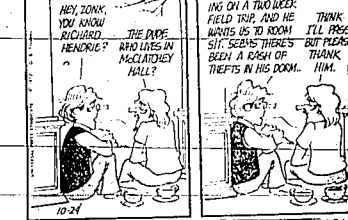

Question arises as to which was the first of all the so-called convenience foods. Fish 'n' chips, I'll warrant. That combination was packaged in rolled-up newspapers and peddled on the streets of England more than 100 years ago.

Only recently it was that opera singer Rhydderch Davies got so distracted during her rendition of the "Buddy Budd" libretto "Look Where You Go" that she fell off the stage.

Don't forget, the catfish can get a preliminary taste of its prey through sense organs in its tail.

Open house draws crowd

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An estimated 6,000 to 10,000 persons trooped through the College of Southern Idaho campus Sunday afternoon during the open house marking the 10th anniversary of the community junior college at its present 240-acre campus.

Security guards counted 6,700 cars in the parking lot late in the afternoon.

Visitors came and went during a five-hour event which included displays and demonstrations ranging from rodeo competition in the Expo Center to concerts in the Fine Arts Auditorium and a sneak preview scrimmage of the new CSI basketball team in the gym.

One of the most popular buildings proved to be the new Vo-Tech Center which houses farm equipment mechanics, consumer electronics, drafting, study skills center, auto mechanics, farm diesel.

Motorcycle fans were intrigued by a trail bike which had been disassembled as a class project in the Recreational Vehicle and Small Engine Mechanics (RVS) course, then reassembled and designed into a street bike, according to Bob Miller, Twin Falls, a RVS student.

Visitors could get their blood pressure taken in the practical nursing quarters and free ice cream was dispensed in the continuous demonstrations on heat pumps and ice cream machines in the REACH program, also housed in the newest CSI structure.

People who tired of the long hikes between buildings could ride in electric cars and vans transported senior citizens.

Praise for Dr. James Taylor, president and first official backer of the college, was heard from many of the visitors who made use of many of the benches and seats throughout the spacious campus.

"Under Dr. Taylor's leadership, they have taken avenues where other colleges have feared to tread," said Twin Falls CSI patron Warren Barry, noting such things as rodeo cowboying is almost unique among community colleges.

He also praised the versatility of the college leadership which has provided training classes for employees when Kellwood and Tupperware factories opened in the area.

Don Crabtree, Kimberly, whose expertise in the field of pre-historic Indian tools has taken him into many colleges throughout the world for lectures, said he knows of no other college which has any better facilities.

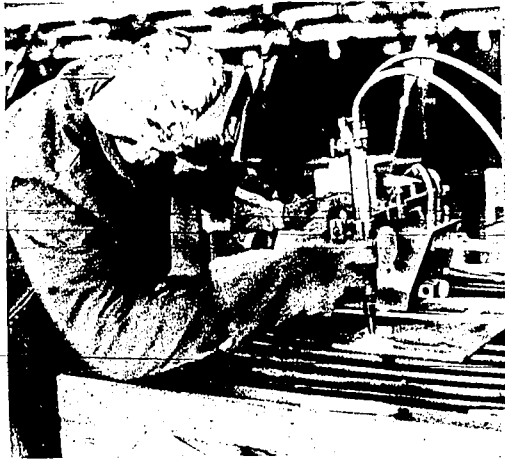

"The community really is blessed. This campus is the most versatile of any I've ever visited," Crabtree said, "with its amphitheatre classrooms and latest equipment."

Another visitor Elmer Hagerty, Twin Falls, said CSI offers opportunity for higher education for many area youths who wouldn't have a chance for it any other way.

After they go here they get challenged and many go on to a four year school, he said.

Visitors polled seem to agree CSI is an asset to the community but Mrs. Rosalee Schlund, Twin Falls, expressed fear that its popularity would promote CSI into a four-year school.

She thinks it should remain a two year college since a four-year institute would cause the community college "to get too big."

Warning to burglars

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff's deputies today issued a warning to burglars who stole roughly 75 pounds of meat from the home of M. J. Danos, Route 2, Filer, about four miles west of Asgrow Research Center on U.S. 30.

Officers said about five packages of the meat had been poisoned with strychnine to be used later as rodent killer.

The poisoned meat, stolen Friday, could become burglar killer, officers said.

Time for new stickers

TWIN FALLS — Motorists with license plates on the staggered system of renewal which end in zero must have red on yellow 1978 stickers on the plates by Oct. 31.

County Assessor Bill Clark urged Twin Falls county motorists to keep the deadline in mind and make certain the new stickers are purchased and displayed.

He also said handicapped persons unable to move without the aid of a mechanical device may obtain special handicapped plates for passenger cars or vans providing the vehicle is used primarily to transport a handicapped person.

These sell at the regular rates and are issued in lieu of the regular plates. They carry the international handicapped symbol of a wheelchair and the passenger. Clark said Idahoans who own and operate passenger cars and pickups are still required by law to continuously have automobile liability insurance.

Proof of insurance is required of all license applicants.

Heyburn meet slated

HEYBURN — A meeting Wednesday will offer the public information about the proposed Heyburn domestic water system and a $550,000 revenue bond issue to finance it.

City officials and consulting engineers will explain the proposed system at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Heyburn city office.

The city council last week scheduled a vote on the $550,000 in revenue bonds to be held in conjunction with the Nov. 8 municipal election.

Heyburn now has no municipal water system. Water for residences in the city comes primarily from shallow sandpoint wells.

Consulting engineer Wendell Smith estimated the system would cost $745,500 for installation. The remainder of the proposed bond money is intended as a contingency fund.

Smith's proposal for repayment of the bonds includes a $7.85 charge monthly for the first 10,000 gallons of water. Water users would be charged an additional 15 cents per thousand gallons on the next 10,000 gallons and 10 cents per thousand gallons on any usage over 20,000 gallons.

Idaho Power proposal

Plant hearings begin today

BOISE — Review of a proposal by the Idaho Power Company to build a coal-fired power plant in southern Idaho begins today at hearings before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission (PUC).

Idaho Power has projected the company and its largely south Idaho customers will need additional power by the early 1980's. To meet this estimated demand, the power company has proposed construction of a coal-fired power plant at one of three sites in Lincoln, Gooding or Power counties.

Last year the PUC rejected an Idaho Power proposal for the Pioneer coal fired plant to be located at Orchard, 23 miles southeast of Boise.

In rejecting that application, the PUC voiced concern of possible environmental problems with a plant close to the Boise urban area.

But the PUC in that decision said Idaho Power would need additional generating capacity by the early 1980's.

Since the Pioneer rejection, Idaho Power has proposed three new locations for a coal fired plant — near Dietrich, near Bliss and north of American Falls.

The Idaho Power projections have been challenged by several organizations, who have questioned whether the demand for power will increase as much as predicted.

The Idaho Citizens Coalition, a Boise-based consumer group has been vocal in opposing any coal fired power plant. Al Fothergill, president of the coalition, said his organization will challenge the Idaho Power statistics.

Karen Arkoosh of Gooding, a member of Citizens for Alternatives to Coal Power, said the Magic Valley group will be represented at the Boise hearings by the Idaho Citizens Coalition.

Citizens for Alternatives to Coal Power has local organizations in "most" of the towns in the Magic Valley, Arkoosh said.

Two witnesses for Idaho Power will present testimony. Bob Brown, Idaho Power news director told the Times-News, "James Bruce, the President, Don Barclay, the Asst. Vice President for planning, loads and resources will be there," Brown said. "Our testimony will address itself to an examination of the problem, and a review of the alternatives," Brown said.

The hearings this week will focus just on testimony from Idaho Power, and cross-examination of witnesses. Later hearings will be held for staff presentations and opponents to the proposed power plant.

Lots of out-of-state hunters

By KEN HODGE and SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writers

MAGIC VALLEY — Record numbers of hunters trudged along ditchbanks and through Magic Valley fields this weekend — the first few days of the 1977 pheasant season.

"It's beginning to be like opening day of dove season in California," Floyd Hazen, Blue Lakes Sporting Goods, Twin Falls, says. "This is really the place to be for opening day of pheasant hunting."

Hazen says Magic Valley is one of the top three or four pheasant areas in the nation and attracts hunters from distant corners of the country.

"We had people in here buying licenses from Alaska and back east," he says.

A spokesman at Newton's Sport Center says the majority of the out-of-state hunters who come through his store in search of $50 non-resident licenses are from California, although they come from Utah, Washington, Nevada and other states.

The race for the ringnecks was just as rapid in the Mini-Cassia area, over the weekend as local and out-of-state hunters flooded the area.

Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said, "I don't know how there could be any more (hunters). There were enough out there that they were practically surrounding those fields."

Opening day hunting accidents were reported in the Minidoka area.

A 12-year-old Rupert boy was shot in the back Sunday on the opening weekend of the pheasant hunting season.

And, a Utah man is in the intensive care unit at St. Anthony's Hospital in Pocatello after an auto accident while helping in Cassia County.

The injured boy, Richard Scott Kehrer, was reported in "pretty good condition" at Minidoka Memorial hospital this morning.

He was shot in the head and shoulders about 3:20 p.m. Sunday on a farm three miles east of Rupert.

A Minidoka deputy sheriff said the boy's father, Jack R. Kehrer, had just taken their car to a nearby farmhouse and was walking back when the boy was hit.

Th party of four adults and the youngster were hunting pheasants. The deputy said two members of the party fired from the spot where the shell was found and it is not known which shell struck the boy.

"The boy had on a light shirt and no jacket and the pattern of shot was termed 'quite heavy,'" However, the attending physician said the BBs would "work out" by themselves.

James W. Patterson, 31, Tooe, Utah, "was seriously injured when his four-wheel-drive vehicle went off a canyon road six miles west of Elba about 4:15 p.m. Sunday.

Passengers, Scott Hunter and Billy Leon Fisher, both 31 and of Roy, Utah, were treated and released from Cassia Memorial Hospital. Patterson is listed in fair condition at the Pocatello hospital.

A Cassia County deputy sheriff confiscated the guns in the Jeep, and the case is still under investigation.

A U.S. Forest Service sign was found in the vehicle. It read "Elba Pass, Elevation 7100."

The deputy said Patterson was headed east down the canyon approaching a curve in the road. He said the vehicle was going too fast for the gravelly conditions and all three men had been drinking.

One man broke his leg while chasing pheasants near Twin Falls over the weekend, according to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

IEA delegates discuss 'strikebreaking'

BOISE (UPI) — Strikes, bilingual education, violence on television, "junk" food in schools and school funding were the key topics Saturday at the delegate assembly of the Idaho Educational Association in Boise.

One key resolution passed by the teacher group stated association policy on strikebreaking. The issue grew out of the recent teachers' strike in Baker, Oregon.

Substitute teachers from Idaho crossed picketlines of the Baker Education Association to help the Baker School Board keep the schools in operation during the strike.

The resolution passed Saturday said in part, "The association also believes that when a teacher picketline is established by the authorized bargaining unit, crossing it is strikebreaking and unprofessional and jeopardizes the welfare of teachers and the educational process."

The resolution also condemned efforts of school boards to keep schools open during a strike. In addition the resolution called for federal and state legislation to insure that teachers have a right to present their case in court before courts impose back-to-work orders.

Terry Gilbert, President of the Idaho Education Association, said there was discussion on the floor of the possibility of excluding from membership in the association teachers who had crossed the picketlines in Baker, but that effort was defeated.

The assembly also passed a resolution praising resolution educational television, but denouncing violence and sexual and racial stereotypes on television.

Another resolution supported the concept of bilingual education, which was defined as using "the primary medium of instruction while teaching the language of the predominant culture in an organized program encompassing a bicultural curriculum."

The resolution said the goal of such programs should be the development of "truly bilingual, bicultural" students.

The assembly passed a cautious resolution on so-called "junk" food in the schools. The resolution said the IEA "encourages" the placing of "nutritious" foods within school buildings. The resolution did not condemn the availability of "junk" food in the schools or address the proposal by Superintendent of Public Instruction Roy Truby to give the state Board of Education the authority to regulate what foods can be sold in schools.

The assembly also endorsed participation in a coalition with other educational groups to present a unified case for increased school funding. The coalition consists of the IEA, the Idaho Department of Education, the state superintendents' association and the Idaho Parent-Teachers Association. The group is hopeful that the state association of school trustees will also join the coalition.

Truby outlined the goals of the funding coalition in an address to the assembly Saturday. He said the group would work to get the Idaho Legislature to provide money sufficient to fund a 12 percent increase in salaries, a 12 percent increase in operating expenses and a 10 percent increase in capital outlay over last year.

Governor John Evans left a statement for the assembly before leaving for a meeting with President Carter and other Western governors in Denver. His statement was read to the assembly by Daryl Sallaz, a Boise junior high school teacher and a Democratic legislator. In it Evans said education was the top priority in his budget for next year, but did not commit himself to the 12-12-10 formula supported by the new coalition of educational groups.

Question..

Is there any additional expense for conducting a funeral in a church instead of your mortuary?

Answer...

We do not make an extra charge for conducting a funeral from a church, neither is there any extra expense for using our mortuary. A funeral is a religious experience and the place it is held should conform to the traditional religious practice of the deceased.

Where a funeral is to be held should be decided by the family members and their clergyman. Our chapel is always available to those who have no church affiliation or who prefer to have their services in our mortuary. We will cooperate in arranging the details.

Idahoans support Eagle Island park

BOISE (UPI) — A newspaper poll conducted by the Idaho Statesman indicates the overwhelming majority of southwestern Idahoans favor the development of the old Eagle Island prison farm as a state park.

The poll, conducted at the request of Governor John Evans, was not a scientific poll in that it did not take a random sample of people in the area. The poll was published in the newspaper and the answers of those who sent in the questionnaire were tabulated.

Of the 269 responses to the questionnaire, 69.5 percent favored converting the island into a state park, 3.7 percent favored turning it into a county park and 8.5 percent favored either sort of park. Thus, 81.7 percent favored using the island as some sort of a park.

Of those opposed to such development 15.6 percent of all respondents favored selling the land at auction and 1.5 percent favored holding the land to be sold at some future date.

Governor Evans has publicly supported the idea of turning the facility into a state park. The Idaho Legislature in its 1977 session directed that the farm be sold at public auction to provide necessary money to expand facilities at the new penitentiary south of Boise.

"I'm very, very excited and pleased that the people of Ada County and southwest Idaho would express so much support for a state park," Evans said after hearing of the results from the questionnaire.

Evans said he could show the poll's results to the legislature to show that a state park is a viable idea.

Evans added that Attorney General Wayne Kidwell is researching the legality of having the State Land Board sell the land to the Department of Parks and Recreation, instead of at public auction. If that can be done, Evans said 50 percent of the cost would be sought from the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and the rest from the Idaho Legislature.

McClure applauds Carter statement on water rights

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said Sunday Idahoans should be grateful President Jimmy Carter "is one our side, at least for the moment," in pledging the federal government will not seek control over state water rights.

McClure was referring to a weekend statement made by the President, who is attending a Western states forum on water policies in Denver, Colo. In Denver, Carter said the federal government will not pre-empt state control over local water rights.

But McClure added, while he had no reason to doubt the President's sincerity, "the bureaucracy has been heading toward more federal controls over water rights for some time."

There is a tendency, McClure added, "for the bureaucracy to continue moving in the same direction," regardless of what a president might say.

Bus pilots ask safety for riders

BOISE (UPI) — Nearly 50 bus drivers from the Meridian School District petitioned Gov. John V. Evans Friday to do something about thoughtless motorists who refuse to stop for school buses.

Ten of them drove to the Capitol to present the governor with a petition signed by 48 persons. Evans was out of the Statehouse at the time but a special assistant, Steve Seward, met with the drivers in the governor's office and promised to speak personally with him later today.

Addressed "To whom it may concern," and signed initially by Alice Dowley, Meridian, the petition said:

"We, the bus drivers of Meridian are very much concerned that one of our children getting on or off our buses are going to get hurt very bad. We would like to see something done about the cars that are not stopping for our stop signs and flashing red lights."

"Most of our children have to cross highways when they are loading and unloading. It seems to me that people don't care if they hit our children. They would like to grow up too.

Unbeaten Denver rips Bengals

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Craig Morton threw an 81-yard touchdown pass to Jack Dolbin and backup quarterback Craig Penrose directed a drive for an insurance TD after Morton was hurt Sunday to lift the undefeated Denver Broncos to a 24-13 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

The Morton-to-Dolbin bomb with just one minute left in the first half broke a 10-10 tie and the Denver defense made the lead stand, allowing Cincinnati just one field goal in the second half.

Denver, raising its record to 6-0, also got a 9-yard TD run from John Keyworth, a 1-yard touchdown blast from Jim Jensen and a 41-yard field goal from Jim Turner.

Cincinnati, which slipped to 2-1, scored on rookie Pete Johnson's 1-yard run and Chris Bahr's field goals of 19 and 24 yards.

Both teams lost their regular quarterbacks on third-quarter knee injuries. Morton was replaced by Penrose, who directed a 63-yard drive late in the last quarter that ended with Jensen's TD.

Cincinnati's Ken Anderson was replaced by John Reaves, who unsuccessfully tried to rally the Bengals in the closing minutes.

It was the second straight game that Anderson was forced out with a knee injury. The extent of the injuries to Morton and Anderson were not known, but neither appeared to be very serious.

Denver, favored after trouncing Super Bowl champion Oakland last weekend, trailed most of the first half.

Just two minutes into the game Johnson popped through the middle of the Denver defense on a third-and-one play and rumbled 65 yards to the Broncos' one.

On the next play, Johnson crashed over to give the Bengals a quick 7-0 lead. Johnson finished with 108 yards, the first Bengal to top 100 yards this year.

Late in the first period, Cincinnati's Willie Shelby fumbled a punt and Larry Evans recovered for Denver on the Bengal's 40. A few plays later Keyworth raced nine yards for the TD to tie the game 7-7.

The Bengals faked a punt to keep their next drive going. Lined up in punt formation on a fourth-and-one on their 44, the center snap went to Tommy Canavan, who raced 20 yards to the Denver 36 for a first down. The play paved the way for Bahr's 19-yard field goal and a 16-7 Bengal lead.

Midway through the second period Evans intercepted an Anderson pass at the Bengals 45, allowing Turner to boot a 41-yard field goal and tied the game 16-10.

Then came Denver's big pass play. With just one minute left in the half, Morton teamed with Dolbin on a surprising 81-yard scoring toss.

Dolbin got a step on the Bengals' defenders and Morton arched a perfect pass, allowing Dolbin to go into the end zone for a 17-10 Broncos halftime lead.

Bahr booted a 24-yard field goal early in the fourth period to bring the Bengals to within 17-13. But Penrose filled in well for the injured Morton and guided Denver to a 24-13 win, capped by Jensen's clinching TD.

Pat hand Colts first defeat

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Darryl Stingley caught four Steve Grogan passes for 116 yards and Russ Francis snared a 31-yard scoring toss Sunday to spark the New England Patriots to a 17-3 victory over the previously undefeated Baltimore Colts.

The Patriots, now 4-2, opened the scoring on a 2-yard run by Don Calhoun and also got an 18-yard field goal by Tom Lincum after Stingley had caught a 68-yard pass from Grogan at the Baltimore eight.

The Colts, 5-1 and tied with Miami for the AFC East lead, scored on their deepest penetration of the day as Tom Lincum kicked a 40-yard field goal after the New England defense held at the Patriot 23. Grogan was 16-of-16 for 214 yards.

Sam Cunningham and Calhoun combined for 137 of

New England's 169 rushing yards on a Baltimore defense that had yielded an average of 109 yards running through the first five games. The Patriots controlled the ball for 39:03, dominating Baltimore on both sides of the line of scrimmage.

New England's first scoring drive appeared to be stopped at the Baltimore eight and Smith kicked a 25-yard field goal. But the Colts were called offside on the play, which led to a New England first down at the THREE. Two plays later, Calhoun went over right tackle for the score at 11-14 of the first quarter.

The teams played through a scoreless second period but New England scored again at 5:43 of the third quarter after taking the opening kickoff 80 yards. Francis made an 11-yard one-handed catch to rescue the Patriots from a third-and-seven situation on their own 23. The drive also featured a diving 12-yard catch by rookie Stanley Morgan and was capped by Grogan's pass down the left side to the 6-foot-6, 240-pound Francis, who cut back across the field to score.

The Colts followed with their own scoring drive but had to settle for Lincum's field goal at 10:22 of the third period.

New England responded 4:01 later on Smith's clip shot after Grogan had thrown the longest completion of his career, 68 yards, over the middle to Stingley, who shook off a defender and finally was pulled down at the Colts' eight.

New England moved to the one on three plays before taking the easy three points.

Pate wins Southern golf by seven shots

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Jerry Pate shot a four-under-par 66 Sunday to win the Southern Open by seven strokes, the widest victory margin of any PGA tournament winner this year.

Former Southern Open champs Johnny Miller and Mac McLendon tied for second, followed by Steve Taylor and tour rookie Phil Hancock.

Pate's 14-under-par 266 was two strokes off the tournament record set by Hubert Green in 1975 on the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Miller and McLendon were within three strokes of Pate when Sunday's rounds began, but Pate shot the first nine in 31 and played it safe the rest of the way for his fifth victory in two years on the tour.

"After about 10, I played conservatively," Pate said. "All I had to do was make par and there was no way they could catch me."

Pate, 24, also won the 1976 U.S. and Canadian Opens and the first tournament of 1977, the Phoenix Open. An injured shoulder limited him to 15 tournaments before this week, and he'll finish the year in his home town at the Pensacola Open.

"I've played this well for about two months," said Pate, whose 1977 winnings increased to $95,529 with the $25,000 Southern Open check. "I've been under par in about every tournament, but until this week I just haven't made any puts."

Miller was hoping for a victory to salvage something from his worst year on the tour, but finished 70-77 and had little hope.

"I thought I might have a chance today," said Miller, the 1971 Southern winner. "But I was two under after six, and still five behind. It took some of the wind out of my sails. I was pleased with the way I played, but I finished like a rookie."

McLendon, the defending champion, had no complaints about his game, although he didn't putt as well as he did in beating Green by two strokes last year.

"I played good every day," said McLendon, "and I'm very proud of my finish (68)."

"That's one of the best scores I've seen in a tournament all year. I needed to shoot 68 instead of 69."

Big Wood, Silver Creek restrictions retained

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

LEWISTON — The Fish and Game Commission decided Thursday to retain the catch-and-release restrictions on Silver Creek, the Hulen Meadows section of the Big Wood River and the Bear Tracks Williams section of the Little Wood River.

They also voted to remove the winter catch-and-release season below Magic Dam on the Big Wood River.

Fish and Game Department director Joe Greenley said the commission decided to retain the catch-and-release rule on the Nature Conservancy section of Silver Creek to allow the University of Idaho-Nature Conservancy study now in progress to be completed without a change in regulations to complicate the findings.

Another reason for the decision, Greenley said, was that the commission, after "intensive and detailed discussion," felt the regulation had not been in effect long enough (catch-and-release has only been in effect since the beginning of last season) to adequately evaluate the effects.

The commission instructed the F&G department to provide them with more information on the creek by next year. The F&G recently completed a study on the creek, but the results have not yet been tabulated.

The decision to retain catch-and-release on the Hulen Meadows stretch of the Big Wood and the Bear Tracks portion of the Little Wood was also motivated by the desire to avoid changing the regulations until the effect of the present regulations can be more fully evaluated.

On the Big Wood River below Magic Dam, the winter catch-and-release season was eliminated, mainly to protect the native rainbows there from disturbance by fishermen during the spawning season.

Greenley said the commission intends to set management goals for waters in the Magic Valley and across the state (that is one of the purposes of the proposed F&G 15-year management plan), gather the information necessary to develop management plans to achieve those goals, and follow through on those plans.

Greenley said although the commission wants to develop consistent management plans for waters across the state, it will take time to gather the information and public opinion needed to determine management goals.

Not the usual rat-race

Rodgers outstrides 5000-plus die-hards

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Rodgers won the New York Marathon through the streets of the city's five boroughs for the second year in a row Sunday with a time of 2:11:28 — over a minute short of the record he set last year.

It was this year's Boston Marathon winner Jerome Drayton, 32, of Ontario with a time of 2:13:52. Behind him, by four seconds, was Chris Stewart, 31, of Great Britain.

But for many others who competed in the 26-1/2 mile race, there was also the victory of knowing they could make it to the finish line in Central Park.

The parade-like race started at 10:30 a.m. on the Staten Island side of the Verrazano-Narrows bridge. With a blast from the starting gun, a 75 mm howitzer, some 5,300 pairs of churning legs made their way across the harbor to Brooklyn under sunny, brisk, autumn skies.

After Brooklyn, the marathon men and women from around the world wound their way through the streets of Queens, Manhattan, the Bronx and back to Manhattan again. The leaders averaged a mile every five minutes.

For those spectators seeking a vantage view, a number of helicopters, one a 30-passenger Sikorsky, hovered above the rooftops along the route.

Several hundred thousand cheering spectators lined the course through the burned-out buildings, the expensive high rises, the business districts and row houses of the city.

Boy Scouts manned watering stops for the thirsty, sweating runners.

Bob Hall, who is crippled by polio, took part in the marathon by racing in his wheelchair. Although he had a 20 minute head start, it wasn't until the 10-mile mark that the leaders in the race caught up with Hall, who smiled as his arms churned in unison.

Hall, who wheeled his way to the finish in the Boston Marathon, finished with a time of 5:25:39. "It was a more difficult course," said Hall of Belmont, Mass., "and of course the strong head winds held me back a bit."

Hall, his hands blackened from the grueling race, said the spectators "were really appreciative. It was great. Sure I'll be back next year."

After the race, Rodgers, who also won the Boston Marathon in 1975, said, "I was really, really nervous about this race but when I thought I had it won, I started to waver to the people."

"It was a hard race," said Rodgers, 28, of Melrose, Mass., as he slipped a coin. "I'm relieved. I just want to fall asleep."

The first woman to finish the race was 42-year-old Miki Gorman of Los Angeles, who came in 30 minutes behind Rodgers. Not too far behind her was 22-year-old Kim Merritt, the second woman to finish.

Among the spectators at the finish line was casually dressed Canadian first lady Margaret Trudeau.

"It's just like a small town with a big happening," she said of the day-long festivities.

Rams face Vikes tonight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — For the second game in a row, young Pat Haden will be the starting Los Angeles quarterback and Joe Namath will be on the bench Monday night when the Rams host the Minnesota Vikings.

Namath, the 13-year veteran and refugee from the New York Jets, lost his job after throwing four interceptions in a Monday night game at Chicago two weeks ago in a game the Bears won 24-23.

With the Rams at 2-2 and looking for some offensive spark, Haden was handed back his role as the club's No. 1 quarterback — a job he held at the end of last season — and Los Angeles ground out a 14-7 win over New Orleans last weekend.

Although Haden was allowed to call his own plays, he stuck to coach Chuck Knox's ground-oriented game plan, calling 61 running plays and passing just 16 times. However, he did connect on a 46-yard pass with tight end Terry Nelson to set up the Rams' game-winning touchdown in the final quarter.

"I thought Pat Haden was excellent," said Knox. "Yes, he's definitely now our starting quarterback."

"I called," admitted Haden, "even a more conservative game than Chuck Knox's." All 71,422 Coliseum tickets have been sold for Monday night's 1976 NFC title game rematch, meaning that the contest will be shown locally. In that game at Bloomington last December, the Vikings won 24-13 and they also prevailed over Los Angeles in the 1974 NFC championship contest in Minnesota 14-10.

However, the Rams, because of their home field advantage, have been made three-point favorites in the 6 p.m. PDT game.

The Vikings lost their season opener to Dallas in overtime but have bounced back to win four in a row to take a one-game lead in the NFC Central.

Minnesota turned back the Bears 22-16 in 6:45 of overtime on a fake field goal play with holder Paul Krause throwing an 11-yard touchdown pass to tight end Stu Voigt on first down. Fran Tarkenton completed 16 of 30 passes for 201 yards while Chuck Foreman rushed 26 times for 150 yards.

One of the most interesting matchups in the game will be Jack Youngblood, the Rams' premier All-Pro defensive end, against Ron Yary, the Vikings' All-Pro offensive tackle.

Youngblood had three quarterback sacks in last January's Pro Bowl but had only one in the Rams' first five games this season, while Yary has a reputation in the NFL of being an expert on holding.

"Oh, God, that's gonna be a day's job," said Youngblood. "It will be another interesting contest against him. I'll have my job cut out for me."

Asked about Yary's alleged holding tactics, the Rams defensive lineman replied, "There ain't nothing you can do except to plead for mercy from the field judge."

Gand Prix crash

Crashes mar Japan Grand Prix

GOTEMBA, Japan (UPI) — James Hunt of Britain won the Japan Grand Prix Sunday, but the 17th and final leg of the world Formula 1 championship series was marred by two accidents, one of which killed a photographer and a security guard and injured 10 others.

Mario Andretti of the United States, who was favored to win for the second consecutive time in Japan, disappointed the spectators when his Lotus collided with Hans Binder of Austria in a Surtees on the first lap near the hairpin turn about 10 minutes after the race got underway. Neither driver was injured but both had to withdraw.

Hunt, driving a McLaren, jumped into the lead as he started from the pole position and never relinquished it over the 73-lap, 2.71 mile Fuji International Speedway circuit at the foot of Mt. Fuji, beating out Carlos Reutemann of Argentina in a Ferrari.

The 30-year-old Briton clocked one hour, 31 minutes, 51.68 seconds with an average speed of 112.225 miles per hour.

The victory increased to three the number of Grand Prix races Hunt has won this year and placed him fifth in the final overall standings with 40 points.

Niki Lauda of Austria had already been declared the winner in this year's World Championship series before the Japan Grand Prix was held. He did not come to Japan.

Hunt did not attend a victory ceremony scheduled following the end of the race and instead departed immediately for Tokyo to catch a flight back to London.

Two Japanese — Kazuhiro Ohishi, a 25-year-old cameraman from Osaka City, and Kengo Yuasa, a 21-year-old man hired as a guard — were killed when the Ferrari driven by Gilles Villeneuve of Canada and the Tyrrell of Sweden's Ronnie Peterson collided on the first corner in the sixth lap.

Ten other Japanese were injured, seven of them seriously, but Villeneuve and Peterson were unhurt. The Canadian's car was broken into pieces, sent high into the air, falling on the spectators area.

Witnesses said Yuasa was killed while trying to remove a dozen spectators from the fence which separated the circuit and the spectators ground.

The accident apparently occurred when Villeneuve, driving his car at a speed of more than 162 miles per hour, tried to overtake Peterson, and touched Peterson's car tires.

The scene of the collision is the tight curve on the right side of the home stretch, generally described as "Devil's Corner" by drivers because they have to exercise their prowess to drive past it without using the brakes and determine what position to take going into the next corner.

Two Japanese drivers were killed in the same area in a race in June 1973.

The Japanese sponsors said the area was off limits to the spectators. Dozens of people, however, were there when the accident took place. One official said some spectators had climbed over the fence and watched the race in the prohibited area.

He said the sponsors had received written agreements from the organizers of the race would not be held responsible in the event of injury or death.

Police said they were investigating if there was any negligence on the part of the Japanese sponsors of the Grand Prix.

Japan's Noritake Takahara crashed into the rear of the two cars. The three drivers did not suffer any injuries but pulled out of the race.

Hunt and Reutemann were followed by Patrick Depailler, France, in a Tyrrell; Alan Jones, Australia, in a Shadow; Jacques Laffite, France, in a Ligier-Matra; Riccardo Patrese, Italy, in a Shadow; Hans Stuck, West Germany, in a Brabham; Vittorio Brambilla, Italy, in a Surtees; Kunimitsu Takahashi, Japan, in a Tyrrell; Jody Scheckter, South Africa, in a Wolf; Kazuyoshi Hoshino, Japan, in a Jollyma, and Alex Ribeiro, Brazil, in a March.

Hunt pulled off his uniform at the end of the race and sipped a soft drink in celebration of his victory. He refused to hold a news conference despite pleas from the Japanese sponsors. He said he had to leave Tokyo for London Sunday night and complained that he had no police escort.

43-year-old Rosewall wears out 23-year-old Connors with savvy

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A weary Jimmy Connors outlasted ageless Ken Rosewall, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2, Sunday to win the $25,000 Australian Indoor Tennis Championships at the Horner Pavilion.

Rosewall, nine days short of his 43rd birthday, put up a magnificent fight in a 145-minute classic before the 23-year-old Connors eventually subdued him for the sixth time in seven meetings. Connors earned top prize money of $22,000.

A spillover crowd of 3,000 gave the two fairly tired players a standing ovation as they left the slow synthetic court.

They cheered Connors for his awesome display of power tennis and Rosewall for his relentless fight against the champion, 20 years his junior. Both players slipped out in some magnificent baseline rallies.

Connors refused to go to the net to protect against being passed by Rosewall's uncanny backhand shots and Rosewall also stayed near the line, fearing Connors' lethal drives from either side.

At one stage Connors was so frustrated by Rosewall's strategy he yelled out, "Don't you ever get tired," as Rosewall pushed him around the court with a series of deft angled volleys.

Connors surrendered more games to Rosewall in Sunday's match than he did in his march to the final.

Seeded number one, Connors lost a mere nine games as he made his way to the finals, defeating Australian junior champion Brad Drewitt, Geoff Fletcher, Tony Roche and American Dick Saviano.

Rosewall, who picked up $10,875 for second place, earned his berth in the final Saturday night by defeating second seed Vilas Gerulaitis of New York, 7-6, 7-5.

After the final, Connors was full of praise for Rosewall's magnificent game.

That "little guy" had me running everywhere. He's a freak with his shots," the American said. "I showed him my shoes after the match, one of them was worn out."

"Have you ever known anyone to blow a sneaker at 40 miles per hour?" Connors asked the crowd.

Australia's chances in the Davis Cup final later this year got a jolt when veteran John Newcombe and Tony Roche threw Australia's likely tandem of Ross Case and Geoff Masters, 6-7, 6-2, 6-1, in the doubles final.

Newcombe and Roche earned $6,500 and Case and Masters, the reigning Wimbledon champions, won $3,675.

Allison breezed to 500 win

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Donnie Allison, whose speed was unmatched all afternoon, took a 7.9-second victory over Richard Petty in Sunday's American 500 stock car race at the North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Allison, starting at the pole position in a Chevrolet, led the first 80 miles of the race and lost the lead only during pit stops en route to his second victory of the season and the ninth of his career.

The $17,135 winner's check gave him his first $100,000 season since joining the NASCAR tour. The Hometown, Ala., driver went over the $500,000 mark in career earnings early this year.

At one stage Connors was so frustrated by Rosewall's strategy he yelled out, "Don't you ever get tired," as Rosewall pushed him around the court with a series of deft angled volleys.

Petty finally took second place, followed by Waltrip.

They were the only two drivers in the same lap as Allison.

Yarborough had an intake valve problem late in the race and finished fourth, one lap back, but his performance was good enough to lock up the lucrative Winston Cup points race for the 1977 season.

Dick Brooks finished fifth, three laps off Allison's pace.

Allison averaged 113.584 miles per hour over the 1,007-mile track in the contest slowed by nine caution flags over 74 laps.

He said he was "a little tired" after the race and that he was "right in the middle" in the accidents which brought out the final three caution flags.

There were 24 lead changes among five drivers, with Allison leading eight times for 374 laps, including the final 72.

Borg rips Orantes

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden, benefiting from an overpowering backcourt game, defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2, Sunday to win the Court Godo tennis tournament and the $14,000 top prize.

The victory was Borg's second in a row on the Grand Prix circuit, coming one week after the 21-year-old's triumph at the Gillette tournament in Madrid.

Borg's strength and the power of his baseline strokes were too much for the more technical play of Orantes. The Spaniard's only threat came in the second set when he took a 4-1 lead and then had a set point at 5-3. But Borg came back to 5-5 and then captured the set.

Orantes, who looked a bit nervous before an overflow hometown crowd of 5,000 at the Royal Tennis Club, earned $7,000.

Borg's efforts in Spain constituted his first major tournament play after pulling out of the U.S. Open last month with an arm ailment.

Texas-Irish Cotton Bowl?

DALLAS (UPI) — With the possible jump by the Texas Longhorns into the No. 1 spot in the country and with Notre Dame's surprisingly one-sided thrashing of Southern California last Saturday, speculation has already begun on the chance for another Texas-Notre Dame matchup in the Cotton Bowl.

Bowl officials cannot hand out invitations until Nov. 19, but a Longhorns-Irish meeting on Jan. 2 is heavy on the minds of local fans.

There is plenty of work, however, for the Longhorns to do before they can become the host team in the Cotton Bowl. Texas (6-0) has a critical test this week against 13th ranked Texas Tech in Austin and the Longhorns close the season against rival Texas A&M — currently ranked 11th.

Notre Dame's reigning national champion against Navy, Georgia Tech, Clemson, Air Force and Miami (Fla.).

Texas and Notre Dame met two straight years in the Cotton Bowl.

Suns catch Lakers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — All-pro guard Paul Westphal and rookie forward Walter Davis led a second half rally Sunday night as the Phoenix Suns defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 104-101 in a National Basketball Association game.

Westphal scored 19 of his game high 26 points in the final two periods and Davis added 15 of his 17 after intermission as the Suns wiped out a 62-38 half time deficit.

Los Angeles, playing without center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and guard Norm Nixon, raced to their big early lead on the strength of 64 per cent shooting in the first two periods. Forward Kermit Washington led the way with 14 points and 14 rebounds.

But the Lakers committed 10 ball control errors in the third period and it took the Suns only 16 minutes to gain the lead 63-61. They lost it twice after that but went ahead to stay on a basket by Davis with 2:29 remaining.

Westphal made five of his seven shots in the fourth period, including four points in the waning minutes.

Guard Earl Tatum led the Los Angeles offense with 20 points, hitting 10 of 13 from the field. Washington finished with 16, two in the second half.

Kenon got backing from George Gervin with 20 points and Mark Olberding and Billy Paulitz, with 16 each. Bruce Seals led Seattle with 10 points.

Pacers rip Sonics

SEATTLE (UPI) — Larry Kean scored 25 points and pulled down 17 rebounds Sunday night to lead the San Antonio Spurs to a 112-94 win over the winless Seattle SuperSonics.

The loss left the Sonics without a victory after three games in the young NBA season.

The Spurs won their second game against two Sonics with their customary run-and-gun

Steelers reverse Oiler loss

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw passed for 221 yards and two touchdowns and Franco Harris ran for two scores Sunday to guide the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 27-10 victory over the Houston Oilers in a game marred by numerous turnovers.

Bradshaw hit John Stallworth with a short screen pass which Stallworth turned into a 49-yard scoring play in the third quarter. Bradshaw then hit Benjie Cunningham in the end zone with a 2-yard pass in the final stanza.

Harris scored the Steelers' first and last touchdowns, in the second and fourth quarters, on 1-yard plunges. In the process, he became the Steelers' second all-time leading scorer with 294 points on 49 touchdowns. Harris passed Mike Clark, who had 287 points, but was far behind place kicker Roy Gerela.

Houston scored on a 5-yard pass from Dan Pastorini to Mike Barber to take an early 7-0 lead in the second quarter. The Oilers also got a 46-yard field goal from Tony Fritsch in the fourth period.

Every score in the game except the Steelers' final touchdown followed a turnover.

Cowboys win sixth straight

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Charlie Waters scored 17 yards with a blocked punt to rally the fourth quarter Sunday to rally the unbeaten Dallas Cowboys to a 16-10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Cowboys were trailing 7-6 when the Eagles were forced to punt from their own 20. Second-year man Jay Saldi, a reserve tight end who made the club last year as the only rookie free agent in Dallas history, blocked Spike Jones' kick and Waters scooped it up and rambled into the end zone for the go-ahead score.

Later in the same quarter, Dallas' quarterback Roger Staubach ran 36 yards to the Eagles 18 on a broken play that set up an 18-yard field goal by Efren Herrera, who had missed two other field goal attempts and had an extra point blocked.

The victory was the sixth without a loss for the Cowboys, the leaders in the NFC Eastern Division, and matched their best start in history. The Eagles, who had led through most of the game, are now 2-4. Staubach's run was the longest of his pro career.

Giants upset Redskins 17-6

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The New York Giants, guided by rookie quarterback Joe Pisarcik, rallied for 17 second-half points after blowing several scoring chances Sunday to upset the mistake-riddled Washington Redskins 17-6.

Halfback Doug Kotar ran 17 yards for a third-quarter touchdown that gave the Giants a 7-6 lead, then Pisarcik hit Jimmy Robinson with a 23-yard TD pass midway through the fourth period. Joe Danco both conversions, plus a 20-yard field goal late in the game.

Washington managed to score only on first-half field goals of 35 and 45 yards by Mark Moseley.

The result left both clubs with 3-4 records and was the Giants' second win over Washington this season.

Browns rip hapless Bills

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Greg Broull pitched a halfback option pass six yards to Cico Miller for a touchdown late in the third quarter Sunday to help the Cleveland Browns to a 27-6 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

Pruitt gained 90 yards for the Browns and had an apparent 6-yard TD run called back because of a penalty as Cleveland raised its record to 4-2. Miller ran for 117 yards for the Browns — his first career 100-yard game.

The Browns capitalized on Buffalo turnovers and mistakes. The Bills, who dropped their fifth loss in six games, were penalized 12 times for 139 yards and lost the ball on two interceptions and two fumbles.

Pack shuts out Tampa 13-0

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Eric Torkelson scored on a 5-yard run and Chester Marcol kicked two field goals Sunday to lead the Green Bay Packers to a 13-0 triumph over Tampa Bay, the Buccaneers' 20th straight regular season NFL loss.

Torkelson's third-period touchdown came after the Packers' Jim Gueno blocked a Dave Green punt and Green Bay got the ball on the Tampa 24.

Green Bay was able to gain only one yard on two plays, but the Packers were then aided by three straight penalties which moved the ball to the seven. Torkelson gained two yards and on the next play went five yards for the score. Marcol kicked the extra point.

Marcol kicked field goals of 40 and 44 yards in the second period.

49ers register first win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jim Plunkett, permitted to call his own plays for the first time this season, steered San Francisco to four touchdowns against the Detroit Lions Sunday in a 28-7 victory that snapped a five-game 49ers' losing streak.

Plunkett threw the ball only 12 times, but completed eight passes, including 32- and 45-yard TD tosses to Gene Washington.

Delvin Williams, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards last season, had his first 100-yard game of the season while Wilbur Jackson also enjoyed a fine day as San Francisco won for the first time after eight straight regular season exhibition losses.

Williams capped his day with a 6-yard run, only his second touchdown of the season, while Jackson scampered 48 yards for the other San Francisco score.

Cards win wild one 49-31

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Wayne Morris ran for four touchdowns and Mel Gray caught two scoring passes Sunday when the St. Louis Cardinals jumped to a 21-0 lead and held on for a 49-31 win over the New Orleans Saints.

After New Orleans scored three quick second-quarter touchdowns to tie it 21-21, the Cardinals marched 70 yards with the second-half kickoff. Morris dove in from one yard out for the score.

Rich Szaro booted a 22-yard field goal to pull the Saints to within 28-21 going into the final quarter, but Terry Metcalf threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Gray for a TD which put St. Louis ahead 35-21.

Dolphins rout Seahawks 31-13

MIAMI (UPI) — Bob Griese hit Nat Moore with two scoring passes in a 24-point second quarter Sunday which sent the Miami Dolphins to an easy 31-13 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

Two of the second-quarter touchdowns were set up by kick returns of 30 yards by Freddie Solomon and 63 yards by Gary Davis. The third touchdown came after a pass interception by linebacker Larry Gordon.

Falcons edge erring Bears

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nick Mike-Mayer kicked three field goals and Haskell Stanback scored on a 2-yard touchdown run Sunday to lead the Atlanta Falcons to a 16-10 triumph over the Chicago Bears, who contributed a mistake before each Falcon score.

Two of the second-quarter touchdowns were set up by kick returns of 30 yards by Freddie Solomon and 63 yards by Gary Davis. The third touchdown came after a pass interception by linebacker Larry Gordon.

Chargers give one to chiefs

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Safety Tim Gray scooped up a fumble and raced 16 yards for a touchdown with 2:08 left Sunday to lift the Kansas City Chiefs to their first victory of the season, a 21-16 upset over the San Diego Chargers.

Gray's score was the second within 28 seconds for the Chiefs in a game the San Diego defense had dominated until the final minutes. San Diego stopped the Chiefs' drive short of the Chargers' goal line with 3:14 remaining, only to hand back the ball when quarterback James Harris fumbled.

How can Idaho fund the F&G?

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans urged a Wildlife Tomorrow Conference Friday to look seriously at different approaches to the financing of the Fish and Game Department in years to come.

"Many ideas have been proposed over the years and with each budget we see increasing problems in continuing to fund Fish and Game solely from sportsman revenues," Evans said.

"At times when management is most needed money seems to be the most scarce because license sales are down," he said. "We also must remember that money can only be raised when the people are willing to pay for the services they are receiving."

Evans said promoting an increased awareness of the costs of intensive wildlife management will have to be an important part of any efforts to change funding patterns.

He urged the conference to keep in mind that the future of wildlife in Idaho will not be determined by a wildlife policy alone. He said almost every action that government or its citizens take has an effect on wildlife resources.

"For example, our state water policies have a dramatic effect on our fish resources," he said. "The two, obviously, must be closely coordinated."

"Land-use policies will directly affect our game and bird populations. We cannot therefore consider the wildlife tomorrow of Idaho without considering the whole scope of what Idaho can and should be in the future."

The governor also said that the conference must face the fact that growth will continue in Idaho and with it will come an increased demand for the state's wildlife resources.

"Many people come to Idaho to enjoy our superb hunting and fishing," he said. "If we ignore that increased demand for fish and game resources we will not be realistically evaluating the total picture."

Joe Louis ailing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis was reported in stable condition Sunday after "entering" a hospital for chest pains.

Louis, 63, was taken Saturday night to Sunrise Hospital, where he was placed in the coronary unit. A hospital spokesman said tests will determine whether Louis suffered a heart attack.

He is currently employed as a host at Caesar's Palace Hotel.

Two late Raider scores top Todd's 396-yard day

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Stabler's 24-yard touchdown pass to Mike Siani tied the game and Errol Martin added the tie-breaking extra point Sunday enabling the Oakland Raiders to survive a spectacular passing performance by Richard Todd and defeat the New York Jets 28-27.

Stabler's second touchdown pass of the last quarter and third of the game came after New York's Pat Leahy missed an extra point and field goal attempts of 32 and 26 yards which would have put the game out of reach.

Todd, who entered the game with only three scoring passes, threw for four touchdowns in the first half and passed for 366 yards before Stabler sparked the Raiders' comeback.

It was the fifth victory in six games for Oakland while the Jets fell to 2-4.

Stabler, who had a 19-yard TD pass to Dave Casper in the first period and a 7-yarder to Fred Biletnikoff in the final period to narrow the lead to 27-21, hit Siani in the left corner of the end zone with 7:59 remaining.

Todd, a second-year man from Alabama, put on his finest performance as a pro in the losing effort.

He hit Jerome Barkum from 18 yards out, threw 37 yards to Wesley Walker for another score and had 14-yard scoring passes to Richard Caster and Clark Gaines. He became the first passer in the NFL this season to surpass the 300-yard mark for one game.

After Mark van Eeghen's 3-yard run gave Oakland a 7-0 lead on its first possession, Todd brought the Jets to a tie 7-7 later. He threw 39 yards to Barkum to tie the Raiders 23 and two plays later hit Barkum from the 18 for the score.

The Raiders moved ahead again on Stabler's 19-yard TD pass to Casper on their next possession, but Todd needed just one play to match that, hitting Walker with an 87-yard bomb. Leahy's kick failed and Oakland led 14-13 at the end of the first period.

The Jets dominated the second period and Todd continued his magic with two more TD passes. His 52-yard pass to Walker to the Raider 22 set up a 14-yard TD pass to Caster and Todd's 14-yard pass to a wide open Gaines five seconds before halftime gave New York a 27-14 lead.

Doctor explains 'fatigue'

© 1977 Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — The fatigue is constant, even after adequate sleep. The patient lacks energy for minor daily tasks. He has seen five doctors after another who have carefully surveyed him for anemia and all other possible organic causes. They have looked for an esoteric infection, for debility that often follows a bout with a virus, for hormonal disorders, for depletion of a body chemical. They have ruled out depression because the patient has no feelings of sadness, hopelessness, indecisiveness or inability to concentrate.

"Joe," they say, "We've checked you out from head to toe and we find nothing wrong. It's all in your head. Forget it."

The trouble with that reply, cautions Dr. Leo I. Jacobs, medical director of Forest Hospital, is that Joe interprets it to mean he is taking his symptoms. This makes him even more miserable and creates a barrier between himself and the doctor.

To break that barrier, Jacobs has devised a simple test that can be performed in minutes to give the patient and the physician an inkling of what lies behind the problem, medically known as neurasthenia.

"Neurasthenia is more commonly seen in excessively conscientious people who find it difficult to relax," says Jacobs. "Their compulsiveness drives them to produce. For them, life is 'to do' or 'to have' rather than 'to be.' Their high standards of performance and achievement put them under constant stress."

But more than that, they have a high degree of independence. They can't accept the basic human need for affection, for being nurtured by their wife or children.

"There are two basic causes for this," he explains. "As a child, they were raised in a home that did not provide or receive tender-loving-care. As an adult, they do not know how to provide or receive love. It's like language. If it is not spoken in the child's family, he does not grow up to be good at it.

"The other factor is the inability to receive a helping hand or be taken care of by someone in the absence of an illness. To him, such dependence is unmasculine and a mark of failure."

This inability to express feelings generates apathetic detachment and eventually, by a psychodynamic process, intense fatigue.

It is difficult for a physician to get to this underlying problem, because the neurasthenia-prone patient is defensive and reluctant to talk about himself or his family life. If he questions touch upon how meaningful is his work, how much love he gives or receives from his spouse and children, and how much play activities he enjoys, he usually will provide curt answers or none at all.

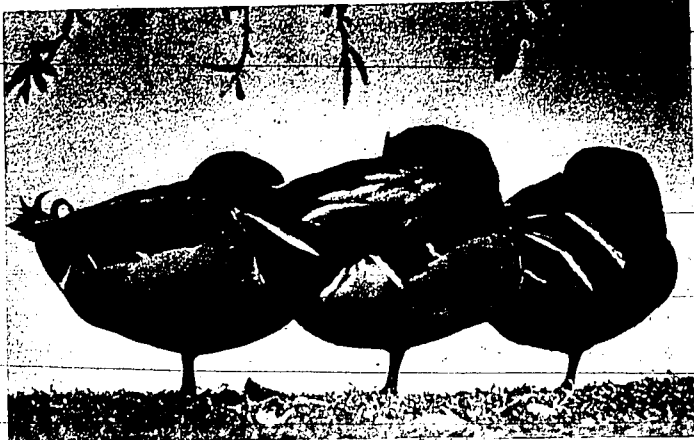

Jacobs has proposed probing these questions by asking the patient to privately shade segments of a pie-shaped diagram which represents the three key areas on his life — work, love and play.

"Have the patient indicate the degree by shading the appropriate space in each sector," Jacobs advises physicians in the medical publication, Consultant. "The patients can then be shown his fatigue is attributable to his type of living, especially if the total unshaded area exceeds 90 degrees."

"The patient will be willing to accept such correlation if the physician has successfully established rapport."

Once having accepted the imbalance in his life, the doctor and patient can work together to expand the shaded area in those sectors the patient can control.

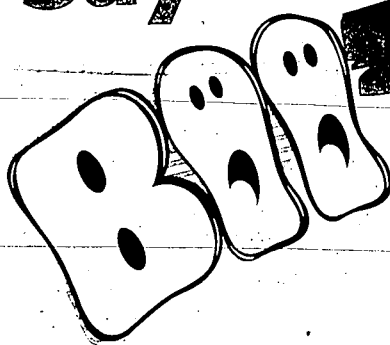

The fatigue will disappear, says Jacobs.

Nap time

WHAT COULD be a three-legged, headless creature for a science fiction movie is far more earthly — three mallard ducks, each perched on its left leg and each with its head tucked under its wing. Zoologists say ducks often nap that way to conserve body heat.
